MAXIMUM SENTENCE IS 18 YEARS IN PRISON

(Picture on Page Three.)

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 29.—Five hours, almost to the minute, after beginning deliberations, a jury in Anne Arundel Circuit Court brought in the verdict last night that Leroy Brady was guilty of second degree murder in connection with the bomb blast that killed his sister-in-law and her little brother and sister on January 1, 1930.

The maximum sentence is 18 years in prison. A shorter term may be meted out at the discretion of Judge Robert Moss, before whom Brady was tried. No announcement was made relative to pronouncement of sentence.

Defense counsel, headed by Hampton Magruder, made no effort to hide their disappointment at the outcome, having been confident, when the jurors filed out late yesterday afternoon, that a verdict of not guilty would be returned.

Verdict Was Compromise.

It was reported that the second-degree verdict was a compromise reached after four jurors had held out for acquittal and eight had voted to convict Brady of murder in the first degree.

Before their decision was read, Judge Moss warned that any demonstration whatsoever would result in arrest of the perpetrators. The doors of the crowded courtroom were locked and policemen and deputy sheriffs posted themselves in every nook and corner, watchful against any display of approval or disapproval which might greet the verdict.

As a result of these precautions it was an orderly, silent audience that heard the words which will send the Maryland man to prison. Brady himself scarcely moved in his chair.

Case Goes to Jury.

The case against Brady went to the jury at 3:55 o'clock this afternoon, another day of surprises.

The State rested as yesterday's hearing came to a close, creating a sensation in the courtroom, but a still bigger surprise was sprung this morning when the defense submitted its case without calling a witness.

The defense, feeling that the State had failed to prove its case against Brady, threw further consternation into the ranks of the prosecution by its tactics, the State having banked heavily upon cross-examination of other witnesses.

The defense made its announcement and then asked that the jury be sent to its room while argument was presented to Judge Robert Moss that all evidence of a gun be stricken from the testimony. Judge Moss overruled the plea.

State Begins Argument.

Arguments were begun by J. Frank Parran, former State's attorney of Prince Georges County. He was followed by Alan Bowie, State's attorney, also for the State; Nicholas H. Green State senator, and Lansdale G. Sasscer and M. Hampton Magruder for the defense. The closing plea was made by Prosecutor J. Wilson Ryon, State's Attorney A. Theodore Brady, of Ann Arundel County, and Frank Hall, of the defense, did not speak.

Le Roy was tried for the murder of Naomi Hall Brady, alone. Two other indictments, charging the murder of Samuel Hall and Dorothy Hall also stand against him. His brother Herman, husband of the former Naomi Hall, also has like charges against him. It is said by members of the State that if Le Roy is cleared of the current charge that he most probably will not face trial on the other counts.

Mr. Parran, while admitting that evidence against Brady was circumstantial, claimed that the bomb was made by a mechanic and contended that Le Roy Brady was the only mechanic that Naomi Hall knew.

Seen Near Home, Claim.

"Le Roy Brady was seen near the Hall home at 2 o'clock in the morning the bomb was left at the home of a neighbor. The car he drove was also seen in the neighborhood. Later he and his car were seen in St. Marys County, where he went with his brother, Herman, to be as far away from the scene of the bombing as possible. He was known to have two sets of automobile tags. One set was found at the Brady home. Red clay, such as at the Hall home, was found on Le Roy's rubbers. The defense has not given any explanation of his movements," Mr. Parran said, in part.

The retirement of the jury was preceded by a few instructions from Judge Moss, in which he explained to the jurymen the five verdicts that might be returned; first degree mur-

DANVILLE STRIKERS VOTE TO SEEK JOBS

Mill Workers Decide to End Four-Month Idleness; Beaten in Fight.

RECOGNITION IS DENIED

Danville, Va., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Virginia's first major industrial conflict, the four-month-old strike of union workers in the Riverside and Dan River cotton mills, ended today by a vote of the workers themselves.

There were apparently no negotiations between the union executives and the mill management, but Francis J. Gorman, vice president of the United Textile Workers, in a prepared statement, said recent statements and actions of the mill management indicated there would be no discrimination against union workers. Gorman said a belief that such discrimination did exist caused the walkout last September 29.

"This action is taken voluntarily by the union with the hope on their part that the mill management will accept it as a measure of confidence and trust which in time may become mutual and enable employer and employe to view their problem eye to eye," Gorman said.

C. S. Garrison, Publicity and Public relations representative of the American Federation of Labor, said he under-

GEM THIEF BITTER IN MARLBORO CELL

Five Major Crimes May Be Laid to Alleged Head of Gang.

MURDER COUNT POSSIBLE

While police are probing his connection with five major crimes in Washington, Baltimore and Los Angeles, Thomas A. Phillips grips the bars of the Marlboro jail and begs to be put in the cell with the man whose cowardice he blames for his arrest.

The other man is Paul M. Taylor, of Kensington, Md., one of the three men who held up a jewelry store in Laurel Wednesday. The third man, Louis C. Taylor, killed himself when he was cornered in a swamp a few hundred yards from the scene of the crime.

Phillips, who says he is from Los Angeles, is said to be wanted there for forgery and larceny of an automobile. Prince Georges County police think he may also be wanted there for a murder which was committed during a holdup about six months ago.

Washington police questioned him yesterday, and say he virtually admitted the holdup of the Avalon Theater in Chevy Chase last August.

SENATE INSISTS ON $25,000,000 RELIEF COURSE

20,000,000 BUSHELS GRAIN VOTED AS AID

Move Afoot to Combine All Proposals in One Bill; House Group Fights Sum.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The fight between the President and the Senate over the question of relieving present distressed conditions, rapidly assuming historic proportions in the eyes of many observers, continued with undiminished determination on both sides yesterday.

Instead of the Senate showing any signs of backing down because of the Red Cross' refusal to accept a $25,000,000 appropriation, it went right ahead with plans to appropriate the money and have it distributed by the Health Department, Salvation Army, or some other suitable agency.

Senator Robinson, minority leader, said some such agency would be selected. Some senators thought more of the Salvation Army idea, the more they considered the various agencies available, because of the rivalry that has grown up between it and the Red Cross since the World War. And a statement by the Salvation Army in New York left no doubt in the minds of any one that it would be glad to handle the fund.

46-16, Vote to Amend.

As if to show its determination to stick by its guns until doomsday, the Senate voted, 46 to 16, to amend the War Department appropriation bill in adding the Capper proposal to donate 20,000,000 bushels of wheat, held by the Farm Board, to the drought-stricken sections. Under the terms of the proposal the Farm Board would be credited with the quantity of wheat donated and the Government would be required to have it ground into flour.

It had already passed the Senate in the form of a resolution, but it was realized the resolution by itself had no chance in the administration controlled House. So it was tacked onto the War Department supply measure.

Again the administration ranks were torn into, only the hardiest of administration supporters voting in the negative. To those who had been previously lopped off the reservation by votes on relief proposals were added such men as Dale, of Vermont, and Glenn, of Illinois. Tydings, of Maryland, was the only Democrat voting against the proposal. The fifteen Republicans were Bingham, Fess, Goldsborough, Gould, Hale, Hebert, Kean, Keyes, Metcalf, Morrow, Moses, Oddie, Phipps, Reed and Watson.

Would Pool Proposals.

With a view to solidifying their strength and to take the Democratic emphasis off of the fight, it is understood the senators interested in drought relief plan to meet today and determine a definite program of action. One proposal is to pool all of the relief proposals into one appropriation bill and then to stand by that bill, regardless of what comes.

In addition to the $25,000,000 proposal and the Capper wheat measure there is pending the Robinson bill to make it possible for the intermediate credit banks to render assistance in the drought-stricken areas.

By lumping everything into one supply bill, Republican and Demo-

GEN. BUTLER'S ARREST FOLLOWS APOLOGY ON HIS REMARKS TO ITALY

White House Denies Part in Decision to Hold Court-Martial.

ADDRESS CRITICIZING MUSSOLINI ADMITTED

Reverberations From Trial Expected in Capitol; Tone of Note Scored.

Atlanta, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—A statement that Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler had sent in his resignation from the Marine Corps, effective February 1, and has signed a lecture contract, was made here today by S. Russell Bridges, Southern manager of Lyceum Bureau.

Mr. Bridges also said he was present, along with Clarence White, another lecture manager, of Portland, Oreg., when Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., in presence of Maj. Gen. Butler and others, told of how Premier Mussolini, of Italy, had run over a child without stopping.

Mr. Vanderbilt, according to Mr. Bridges, told the story last November in New York at a meeting of lyceum managers which was hearing synopses of lectures from a number of people who were seeking bookings for the 1930-31 season. At that time, Mr. Bridges, said, Maj. Gen. Butler had submitted his resignation from the Marine Corps.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Hero of 40 battles, a warrior with two congressional medals to his credit, Maj. Gen. Smedley Darlington Butler, of the United States Marines, was his own prisoner in his own camp at Quantico, Va., last night, awaiting trial before a general court-martial.

Here in Washington, reports were flying around that President Hoover himself was behind the drastic action that had been taken against the garrulous general, but at the White House this was denied.

Earlier in the day, Secretary of the Navy Adams and Secretary of State Stimson had "mopped up" on the fighting Quaker, the one by ordering him court-martialed, and the other by apologizing profusely to Premier Mussolini of Italy for the "discourteous and unwarranted" remarks Butler had made about him.

Admits Statement.

In a speech in Philadelphia eleven days ago, Gen. Butler was quoted as saying that a "friend" told him that Mussolini, riding in an armored car at 70 miles an hour, had run over a child and refused to stop. Questioned by his superiors, Gen. Butler admitted that he had said substantially that.

That the incident will cause a reverberation on Capitol Hill seems certain. Rumblings were heard in the corridors and the cloakrooms yesterday. In an off-the-floor statement, Senator Smith W. Brookhart (Republican), of Iowa, said:

"I am with Gen. Butler in whatever he says about Mussolini."

Plans Closed Trial.

It is the plan of Secretary of the Navy Adams to hold the trial of Gen. Butler behind closed doors, but those who know Butler expect him to demand an open hearing.

The expectation is, too, that Gen. Butler will retain some celebrated civil attorney to represent him at the court-martial, which probably will be held in this city.

The drastic action taken against Gen. Butler—he is the first Marine Corps general ever to be court-martialed—fairly stunned naval and military men.

The expectation was that he would be reprimanded for his attack on Mussolini; that the State Department would express its regret over his remarks, and that this would close the incident.

Find Note Abject.

In 1911, Admiral William S. Sims, U. S. N., retired, who then was a commander, made a speech in London in which he pledged this Nation's support to England if she ever got

NYE ACCUSES MOSES OF AIDING HIS FOES

Prints Committee Expenses as if Dakotan's Own, Senator Says.

TRICKERY CLAIM DENIED

(Associated Press.)

Senator Nye indicated in the Senate yesterday that he thought Senator Moses had attempted to endanger his chances for reelection next year.

The North Dakota Republican, who is chairman of the Senate campaign funds committee, vigorously assailed Moses, a New Hampshire Republican, for placing in the Congressional Record an itemized statement showing the Nye committee had spent $97,000.

Moses, the chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee, promptly rejoined by saying his move was made "without any regard for the future ambitions of the Senator from North Dakota."

Nye said he could "see the pages of the Record in the hands of every political foe of mine in North Dakota when I seek reelection next year," with "tongues wagging about how lavishly Nye lives when out on Government expense."

He added he had heard it whispered around the chamber recently that a "scandal was coming," involving the campaign funds committee and that one member, whom he did not name, had been warned he had "better get off" if he did not want to be implicated.

Protesting it was unfair to him and other committee members to have the expense account thus published before it had been thoroughly checked, Nye said it showed items of $1,500, $1,800 and $2,000 indirectly charged to him and also an item of $4,000 drawn by his brother, Donal O. Nye, in charge of the committee's agents—all of which, he asserted, would be used as "political capital" against him.

The account showed the committee employed at various times more than a dozen investigators, most of whom received $500 a month and expenses. A secretary also receives $500 a month; one clerk, $200; two assistant clerks, $125, and others at varying salaries.

One item picked at random showed $65.10 expended by Nye in Chicago from May 7 to 11 for meals, tips and incidentals. Nye explained it was not infrequent that committee chairmen

8 BODIES REMOVED AFTER MINE BLAST

Little Hope Held for About 30 Others Trapped in Pit in England.

EXTENDS FAR UNDER SEA

White Haven, England, Jan. 29 (A. P.).—The bodies of eight miners were brought to the surface tonight shortly after a heavy explosion in the Haig coal pit and little hope was held that others down at the time, estimated at 20 to 35, were alive.

Between 8 and 9 o'clock when the night shift was preparing to take over, the stopping which seals off the development area in the mine was blown out and the men in the adjacent section were enveloped in gas.

Only three miners were rescued immediately, all badly gassed.

A rescue party descended with special apparatus. Physicians and nurses hurried to the pithead as relatives stood around awaiting news from below.

The Haig pit, one of four at White Haven, was the scene of an explosion in February, 1928, when thirteen men were killed in a working which extended more than 2 miles under the sea.

DePriests Attend Hoover Reception

Representative and Mrs. Oscar De Priest, attended the congressional reception at the White House last night. Representative De Priest, the only colored member of Congress, was greeted cordially by President Hoover.

Mrs. De Priest wore a beige lace gown with tiers and a diamond brooch and silver slippers. After the reception they mingled with guests in the east room and later moved to the long corridor of the White House.

During their stay, which lasted from 8:30 to 9:50, they conversed freely with the other guests.

Cutter Beats Rumrunner In Test of Need for Killing

Race of Saturday Which Cost Canadian Captain's Life Repeated at Request of British Consul; Report on Inquiry Forwarded.

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The Josephine K., Canadian rum-runner, and the Coast Guard cutter 145 this afternoon peacefully repeated the race they had Saturday night off Ambrose Light, and again the guard ship won.

The race was held to determine whether the cutter might have captured the liquor ship in Saturday's encounter without resorting to shelling. That speed contest ended with two direct hits on the Josephine K. by shells from the 145 and the killing of her commander, Capt. William P. Cluett.

Gerald Campbell, British consul general in New York, who has been attending the investigation of the incident by a Coast Guard board of inquiry at the request of the Canadian government, raised the question whether the gunplay was necessary.

Boatswain Karl Schmidt, who fired the shells that ripped into the rum-runner, was in command of the 145 at today's test. The Josephine K. was handled by her own men with one exception—Boatswain W. T. Murphy took the place of Capt. Cluett.

The cutter walked away with the race, making a speed of 11.15 knots. The Josephine K. did only 9.55.

The race was held over a 3-mile course from West Bank Light to Old Orchard Shoal. For checking purposes the ships took it both ways. They fought heavy weather and strong winds.

In order to approximate the conditions of Saturday's contest, the Josephine K. was provided with a cargo of pig iron of the approximate weight of the liquor that has been taken from her and stored in the barge office here.

Members of the board of inquiry started writing their report as soon as the race was run. It was to be sent by messenger to Rear Admiral Frederick C. Billard, commandant of the corps, in Washington.

Calvin Coolidge

Says: We are very far from solving all our problems of government. We can feel fairly secure about our National Government. Many unsound proposals will be made in it but they will not often prevail. Our State governments are generally satisfactory. Sometimes they are too radical, but they are secure. In the towns where office is close to the people little trouble is anticipated.

When we turn to the cities the picture is not so encouraging. In both large and small urban communities the Government oftentimes comes so near breaking down that it has to be rescued by State legislation. The fundamental difficulty is almost always in finance or security—high taxes and extravagance bordering on corruption, and in failure of the police to furnish adequate protection against crime.

Most of the trouble could be eliminated by the right type of mayor. Popular election of the chief executive of cities is coming to be discredited in many places. The people at large want and would support good city government, but under the present system they are unable to secure it. The remedy may be found in some indirect method of electing the mayor or closer State supervision of that office.

Airship Proponents Envision 60-Hour Journeys to Paris

House Committee Is Told Business Man of Future Will Enjoy Palatial Steamship Comforts on Gigantic Commercial Dirigibles.

(Associated Press.)

Prophecies that men soon will be able to fly to Paris from Washington in half the time it now takes and have the same comforts available on modern palatial steamships were made yesterday before the House commerce committee.

An explorer and an admiral joined others in indorsing the pending Parker bill, designed to speed the day when the Washington-Paris trip can be made in two and one-half days. They said time would prove the safety of dirigibles so the average man would be willing to cross the seas in them or to proffer money for the development of the airship industry.

Sir Hubert Wilkins, explorer, said the bill was essential for development of air liners. He added that conspicuous accidents in recent years had been the outcome of experiments by people with limited experience and should not have an undue influence.

Jerome C. Hunsacker, vice president of the Goodyear Zeppelin Corporation, suggested immediate action would give the United States an even start in the new transportation field with other countries. His company, he said, proposed to build two dirigibles twice the size of the Graf Zeppelin to accommodate 80 passengers and make the Washington-Paris trip in half the five and one-half days it now takes the steamship Bremen.

Col. Harry H. Blee, director of aeronautic development for the Commerce Department, talked of "large possibilities" in dirigible development and added:

"It seems highly desirable to make it possible for citizens of this country into a war. The result was that other powers in Europe became very much incensed. All that came of the incident, however, was a reprimand, administered by President Taft.

Though they would not talk for publication yesterday, some officers in the Navy and the Marine Corps were incensed at the tone of the message of apology which Secretary Stimson sent to Premier Mussolini.

It would have been enough, they argued, for Secretary Stimson to have notified the Italian Ambassador that a court-martial had been ordered. Instead, they said, he convicted Butler in advance and went too far in his apology.

Action Comes Fast.

Friends of Secretary Stimson, of course, saw the matter in an entirely different light. Notwithstanding certain remarks that Mussolini has made about the United States, they said, Italy is a friendly nation and that it was necessary for such an apology be offered to maintain those friendly relations.

The point was, they said, that Gen. Butler had admitted that he made the remarks attributed to him.

Action in the case came fast yesterday. First thing in the morning Secretary of the Navy Adams began a study of Gen. Butler's letter, which admitted that he had made the Philadelphia speech.

Then, after a conference with Assistant Secretary Ernest Lee Jahncke, Maj. Gen. Ben Fuller, commandant of the Marine Corps, and Rear Admiral John Halligan, assistant chief of naval operations, Secretary Adams authorized the following statement:

"Secretary of the Navy Charles Frances Adams today ordered a general court martial for Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, United States Marine Corps. The action followed receipt of a letter from Gen. Butler setting forth, as requested by Secretary Adams, the remarks made by Gen. Butler in a speech at Philadelphia, January 19, which was reported to have contained an attack upon actions of Premier Mussolini, of Italy.

Arrest Is Ordered.

"Following the Secretary's order, Maj. Gen. Ben H. Fuller, major general commandant of the Marine Corps, notified Gen. Butler to place himself under arrest and to confine himself to the limits of his station.

"Command of the Marine Barracks, Quantico, Va., the office held by Gen. Butler prior to his arrest, devolves upon his second in command, Brig. Gen. Randolph C. Berkeley, United States Marine Corps."

Within an hour Secretary of State Stimson issued this statement:

"Having learned from the Navy Department that Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, United States Marine Corps, has admitted that the quotation of his remarks in the press was substantially correct, I have this morning handed a note to the Italian Ambassador expressing to Signor Mussolini and to the Italian people the deep regret of this Government at this unauthorized action on the part of an officer on active duty."

Utterance Held Unwarranted.

The note follows:

"I have the honor to express the deep regret which this Government feels at the reflections against the Prime Minister of Italy in the unauthorized speech of Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, United States Marine Corps, at Philadelphia on January 19.

"The sincere regrets of this Government are extended to Mr. Mussolini and to the Italian people for this discourteous and unwarranted utterance by a commissioned officer of this Government on active duty.

"Accept, Excellency, the renewed assurance of my highest consideration.

(Signed) "HENRY L. STIMSON."

Today plans will go ahead for the general court-martial of Gen. Butler, a court-martial that, if it is held in the open, is expected to be even more sensational than the one in which Col. "Billy" Mitchell figured a few years ago.

Never Before Prisoner.

Col. Mitchell, accused of insubordination among other things, was suspended for five years. Shortly after the trial he resigned.

Gen. Butler, who for all his fiery statements has never before been a prisoner, probably will be charged with one of two things—"conduct prejudicial to good order or discipline" or "conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman."

The general court-martial board which will try him will be made up of from five to thirteen naval and Marine Corps officers, probably thirteen. Where it is possible, half of the officers are senior to the prisoner and at least one-third of them are Marine Corps officers.

The rank of major general is on a par with the rank of rear admiral. Of rear admirals senior to Gen. Butler there is an abundance, but when it comes to selecting Marine Corps officers senior to him, the Navy Department may run into a snag.

Ranks Near Top.

Actually, Gen. Butler, though he is only 40, is the top-notch general in the corps. Gen. Fuller ranks him only because he is the commandant. Maj. Gen. Logan Feland, the only other major general, who is on the West Coast, is under Butler in the matter of seniority.

Gen. Fuller is not expected to serve on the court-martial board.

Under the regulations, it is permissible to ask retired officers to return to the service temporarily, in order to serve on the board. If this is done in Butler's case, it would not be surprising if Maj. Gen. Lejeune, the retired commandant, is asked to come back.

Magruder Is Eligible.

Among the rear admirals who are eligible to serve on the board is Thomas P. Magruder, who in 1927 wrote an article for the Saturday Evening Post, which resulted in his being removed from his post at the Philadelphia Navy Yard to command of the fleet base force.

The general court-martial may result in any one of a number of verdicts. Gen. Butler might be discharged, he might be imprisoned, he might be suspended, as was Gen. Mitchell, or he might be reprimanded. The expectation is that the latter verdict will be recommended.

Tribute Paid Yesterday.

Through a coincidence the Navy Department yesterday paid a tribute to Gen. Butler at the same time Secretary Adams was ordering him court-martialed. It made public a book, prepared by the officer of naval intelligence, called "The United States Navy in Peace Time."

In this was found a panegyric to Butler's efforts as a peacemaker in China a few years ago. No finer example of successful arbitration by American officers has been demonstrated in recent years, the book said.

The specifications and charges against Gen. Butler will be drawn up by Rear Admiral David F. Sellers, judge advocate general of the Navy, who will also select the scene of the trial and set the date for it. He will not serve as prosecutor, however. That role will be assigned to an officer especially selected by Secretary Adams.

BUTLER PRESERVES SILENCE ON CHARGE

Confined to Reservation at Quantico, He Refuses to See Outsiders.

ANOTHER IN COMMAND

Quantico, Va., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Confined within the limits of the Marine reservation he formerly commanded, Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler maintained strict silence tonight concerning court-martial proceedings instituted against him by Secretary Adams.

The fiery officer, whose career has been colorful and tumultuous, declined to see any one except his fellow officers and aids. Newspapermen and other callers were informed Butler was not receiving visitors.

So far as could be learned from Butler's aids and from Brig. Gen. Randolph C. Berkeley, now commandant of the post, word of the specific charges against Butler or of the date when he would face the court-martial had not been received.

Berkeley Takes Command.

Gen. Berkeley said his knowledge of the affair was limited to a phone call from Washington that Butler was under technical arrest and would be tried by his brother officers.

"As second ranking officer," Gen. Berkeley said, "I have taken command of the post. Naturally, I can't discuss this matter and I doubt if Gen. Butler will, except with his counsel.

"We are all hoping he will come out all right."

The new commandant said Butler was not confined to his quarters but had the freedom of the Marine reservation, which extends for miles along the Potomac and surrounds the town of Quantico.

Enlisted Men Comment.

News that Secretary Adams had ordered a court-martial spread swiftly in the military and civilian quarters of Quantico.

Among the enlisted men the opinion was expressed that "he knows what he is doing and thinks three times before he speaks."

Quantico civilians recalled that he issued orders about a year ago that the town be "cleaned up," threatening that if it wasn't the Marine personnel that provides much of the trade would be kept from going there.

There was a rumor abroad that Butler might resign.

Apology Seen as Closing Butler Incident in Italy

Rome, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Apology by the United States for alleged derogatory remarks made by Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler about Premier Mussolini appeared tonight to have closed what might have developed into an unpleasant incident.

While the premier was described as being naturally somewhat annoyed, official circles said he considered that Butler's vi- were those of only one American general and not of the Amer an people.

The promptness of the official American apology completely satisfied Il Duce, it was said, and the evening papers did not even comment on the affair.

The morning papers, issued before the apology became known, were incensed, La Tribuna describing the Marine officer's remarks as insolent, impudent and ridiculous. The paper added editorially:

"This is not the first time Gen. Butler has created incidents for his government with his impudent, fantastic speeches."

The only government statement on the affair was that by a spokesman at the foreign office, who said the protest of the Italian Ambassador in Washington was directed by that office. He also reiterated a statement that the Butler references about Premier Mussolini were without foundation.

Recall Former Incidents.

Historians yesterday were recalling other international controversies stirred up by American officers, among them the case of Rear Admiral Joseph C. Coghlan, who commanded the U. S. S. Raleigh at the Battle of Manila Bay. At that time, several unpleasant incidents occured, which served to strain relations between the American Fleet and the German Fleet, anchored outside.

When Admiral Coghlan got back to New York, he attended a banquet in New York and recited "Me Und Gott." The German Ambassador registered a strong protest, and Coghlan was demoted, reprimanded, and sent to Bremerton, Wash. He died 22 years ago.

Children Can Annoy Parents 2,124 Ways, Survey Reveals Slowness, Primping, Alertness Included in Plaints Recorded.

Athens, Ga., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—There are 2,124 ways in which children annoy parents.

Dr. Mandel Sherman, director of the Child Research Center, Washington, made this statement here today before the twenty-fourth annual farmers week and marketing conference at the Georgia State College of Agriculture.

Dr. Sherman said a survey was made by 32 parents, who were asked to keep account of the ways in which their children annoyed them. They carried small notebooks with them and kept a record each day of the week.

The greatest number of annoyances, Dr. Sherman said, was caused by disobedience, but all sorts of conditions were put down as annoying. Some parents were annoyed because their children were too slow, others because they were too quick or alert. A few parents were annoyed because the children were not neat, while others were disturbed by their primping.

"The results," Dr. Sherman said, "showed that the attitudes of the parents, their emotions at a given time, and their feelings of well-being affected greatly the kind and number of annoyances with their children."

Discussing "Education of Parenthood," he said the problem of personal welfare and of happiness can be solved by properly preparing the youth for life—and education for parenthood can do much in this respect.

DR. MANDEL SHERMAN.

"Many people still believe that a child develops 'naturally' and that what he inherits determines what he will be later on. But our work with children in the past 25 years has given proof that the way in which a child is brought up determines what he will be later on as a youth and as an adult.

"The most easily influenced of all a child's development is personality. All of us can agree that one of the most important causes of unhappiness is a personality which fits in poorly with conditions and with other people."

ALABAMA SENATORS CLASH IN VOTE ROW

HOUSE CRITICISM CITED

(Associated Press.)

Sharp verbal clashes between Alabama's two Democratic senators—Heflin and Black—marked a futile attempt yesterday by Mr. Heflin to obtain authority for the Senate campaign fund committee to impound the ballott boxes from the election last year, in which he was defeated.

The Alabama senator's efforts were blocked by his own refusal to allow the boxes to be impounded by the Senate elections committee, instead of the campaign funds committee. He contended the former was unfriendly to him.

Senator Couzens (Republican), of Michigan, twice blocked consideration of the Heflin resolution to give the campaign funds committee authority. Mr. Couzens said the boxes should be seized by the standing elections committee.

Heflin's Stand Scored.

The temper of the debate was heightened by announcement that the Alabama House of Representatives had passed a resolution criticizing Mr. Heflin's sportsmanship for contesting the election of his opponent, John H. Bankhead.

The action of the Alabama House was announced to the Senate by Mr. Black.

"I hope my sportsmanship will never be good enough to allow me to submit when the ballots of the people of my State are stolen," Mr. Heflin replied.

"I deny the right of the Federal Government to go into Alabama and tell my people who can vote and who can't vote," Mr. Black said, comparing this procedure with "the slimy trail of reconstruction days."

Favors Investigation.

Mr. Heflin answered the Alabama legislature's action with the following story:

"A man who stole some meat was tried by a jury. He was acquitted. Afterward his friends asked him how that happened. He replied, 'That was easy. All twelve of them got some of the beef.'"

"This investigation," he added, "might disclose that some of them were not fairly elected."

Several times during the day Mr. Heflin attempted to make Mr. Black answer whether he was opposed to his resolution. Senators on both sides of the aisle listened attentively to the row between the Alabama senators.

Mr. Black said he would favor a "full and fair investigation" of Mr. Heflin's charges the election was stolen from him. But, he added, the people of Alabama believed the charges were "merely a farce."

Alabama House Scores Heflin's Sportsmanship

Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The Alabama House of Representatives today adopted a joint resolution expressing "its condemnation of the very poor sportsmanship exhibited" by Senator J. Thomas Heflin "in being unwilling to admit like a man that he was defeated in a fair election."

The resolution was adopted by a vote of 91 to 3.

Representative Coates, of Clark County, introduced the resolution which said: "No man in Alabama during the last quarter of a century has received greater gifts within the range of the electorate of this State than has J. Thomas Heflin."

Roosevelt Hotel Brings $1,125,000

Structure Is Bought at Public Auction for Undisclosed Parties.

The Roosevelt, eight-story fireproof apartment hotel at 2101 Sixteenth street northwest, was sold at public auction yesterday to Harry Rankin, of New York, representing undisclosed out-of-town interests, for approximately $1,125,000.

Mr. Rankin's sole bid of $200,000 acquired the property subject to a first deed of trust for $990,000 and interest of approximately $25,000. The building will continue to operate as an apartment hotel, it was said. Adam A. Weschler & Son were the auctioneers and Robert B. Cummings and Daniel W. O'Donoghue the trustees.

The building, erected in 1919 by the Boyle-Robertson Construction Co., was originally owned by the Washington Properties Co., Inc. Appleton P. Clark, jr., was the architect and the cost of the structure, first called the Hadleigh, was more than $900,000. It is of brick and concrete construction with limestone trim.

FOOD PRICE INQUIRY PREPARED TO START

Capper Committee Names C. V. Maudlin to Plan Program for Probe.

MAY END IN ONE WEEK

The Senate investigation of discrepancies between retail food prices and prices paid producers got under way yesterday when the investigating committee selected C. V. Maudlin, managing director of the Bureau of Applied Economics, to aid in the inquiry.

Various aspects of the inquiry were discussed with members of the committee by Mr. Maudlin, who is to outline a program for the committee and submit it at a meeting Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, chairman, has called for Monday.

A week of hearings Senator Capper estimated will be adequate. He expects to have the inquiry report in the hands of the Senate before adjournment.

The inquiry will cover prices of wheat, flour and bread, milk and dairy products, meats and sugar.

Food prices in this city will be gone into, Senator Capper said.

"Reports received by the committee," the senator said, "indicate that bread prices in Washington might be lower and no one particularly hurt by reduced prices.

A general investigation of fluctuations in commodity and securities prices is proposed in a resolution before the Senate. This measure, introduced by Senator Steiwer (Republican), Oregon, provides for appointment of a civilian commission by the Vice President to make the inquiry.

are credited with the entire hotel bill for several members when out in the field.

Moses said when the audit and control committee approved an additional $50,000 for the committee it stipulated a date be set for termination of the investigation and an itemized account of previous expenditures be made.

"The accounting not having been forthcoming," he added, "I entered it in the record without any regard for the future ambitions of the senator from North Dakota."

Moses put the account in the record when Senator Heflin (Democrat), Alabama, said the Nye committee could investigate the Alabama election cheaper than the regular Senate elections committee.

Declaring it was possible of misinterpretation, Nye said it "reveals the intent and desire of certain individuals to see the chairman of the committee put in an unfavorable light with a cloud over his expenditures."

"Never before," he added, "has the chairman of a committee been treated in such a way. I think I understand what underlies it, but I am willing to have every one see how every dollar was spent."

MARKET "RIGGED" ON BONUS, CHARGE

Mellon and Mills, Quizzed at House Hearing, Deny Manipulation.

PLEA MADE TO SENATORS

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Mellon carried his opposition to cashing veterans' bonus certificates to the House ways and means committee yesterday and was met by a question whether the bond market was "manipulated" yesterday to "agree" with his warning.

Undersecretary Mills answered the question. He said the reaction of the bond market naturally followed reports that Congress was seriously considering conversion proposals and "was to be expected."

Mills Quizzed by Garner.

Mills came in for a general quiz by Representative Garner, of Texas, the Democratic leader, on Mellon's statement yesterday at the other end of the Capitol, that a deficit of $375,000,000 was anticipated.

Rainey said Liberty bonds descended $1 Wednesday, and that "very few changed hands." "I want to know," Rainey said, "whether that wasn't a manipulated market for the purpose of agreeing with the Secretary's warning and defeating the soldiers' bonus."

"I certainly don't think so," Mills returned. "Word went out last week that this proposition was being considered seriously. What are these Government bondholders going to do? They are going to sell their bonds—the very suggestions that the Government is going to do this has a bad effect on the Government bond market."

Mellon urged the committee to consider its responsibility in the Nation's finances. He asked Secretary Mills to read the statements he gave the Senate finance committee yesterday and calmly sat by, watching.

Before Senate Committee.

While the House committee was hearing opposition to the proposal, four House members and representatives of two veterans' organizations were asking the Senate finance committee for immediate redemption of the certificates.

J. Thomas Taylor, legislative representative of the American Legion, said, however, the national executive committee of that organization had taken no stand on whether the face value or current value of the certificates should be paid. The former would cost $3,400,000,000, while the latter would cost from $1,700,000,000 to $2,100,000,000.

Thomas Kirby, national legislative chairman of the Disabled American Veterans, unhesitatingly recommended the full amount. He said the redemption of the certificates would not only aid the distressed veterans, but would be "an extremely valuable method of meeting the national depression."

Three of the four House members who testified urged the committee to approve a measure for cashing the face value of the certificates. They were Representatives Patman, of Texas; Rankin, of Mississippi, and Connery, of Massachusetts, all Democrats.

Patman Criticizes Mellon.

Patman, referring to Secretary Mellon's opposition, said "His feelings naturally cause him to make estimates in accordance with his opinions. His feelings are such that his mistakes are always against the veterans."

Patman said he believed Congress would have made the original bonus act a cash proposition if Mellon had not underestimated the condition of the Treasury by nearly $1,000,000,000.

While the act was under consideration, the Texan said, Mellon estimated the Treasury would have a deficit of $300,000,000, but when the year was over there was a surplus of $500,000,000.

"I don't mean he is dishonest—or there was any corruption," Patman added.

Representative Clancy (Republican), Michigan, urged cashing the certificates and reducing the rate of interest on the certificates.

Both Kirby and Taylor urged early action on bills now pending before Congress to provide more hospital facilities for disabled veterans. The committee adopted a motion by Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, to open hearings on them as soon as the present hearings are concluded.

$3,000,000 Park Bill To Be Reported Today

Favorable report on the Capper-Cramton bill providing $9,000,000 for immediate purchase of land for the George Washington Memorial Parkway along the Potomac River is expected to be made this afternoon by the Senate District committee.

The bill is designed to speed up development of the parkway project by permitting the Government to get immediate possession of land along the route of the boulevard to Mount Vernon.

Kiwanians See Florida Film.

Motion pictures depicting the beauties of Miami, Fla., were shown yesterday at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club, held at the Washington Hotel. Kiwanis International will convene in the Florida city next May. Gene Woodson gave a short talk on the possibility of Washington's obtaining the 1932 convention.

Nepotism in Salary Rolls Is Attacked by Stone Bill

Representative Says Appointments of Kin Who Do No Work Prevails in Government; Would Give Positions to Unemployed.

Appointment of relatives to the Federal pay roll by members of Congress or other Government officials is forbidden under a bill introduced in the House yesterday by Representative U. S. Stone (Republican), Oklahoma.

The measure makes it illegal "for any executive, legislative, ministerial or judicial officer to appoint or vote for the appointment of any person related to him by affinity or consanguinity within the third degree, to any clerkship, office, position, employment or duty in any department of the United States Government of which such officer is a member, when the salary, wage, pay or compensation is, to be paid out of the public funds or fees of such office."

"I have hesitated to introduce a bill to prevent 'pay roll racketeering' by members of both houses of Congress," Mr. Stone said, "but after an examination of the official report of the secretary of the Senate and the annual report of the clerk of the House of Representatives I find that wives and relatives of members are being carried on the pay roll at high salaries, when it is a well known fact that they perform practically no labor to earn the salary.

"The present serious condition, where there are over 5,000,000 walking the streets seeking employment and unable to support their families, many of whom are former service men, fully able and competent to hold the position now held by relatives who perform practically no labor, has caused me to prepare a bill patterned after the present law in effect in the State of Oklahoma, and known as the Nepotism law, which if enacted into law would stop this cheap form of pay roll racketeering now practiced by many members of both houses of Congress, and by the heads of the Government departments in the District of Columbia.

Red Cross Drought Aid Jumps to $4,207,941

Reports to national headquarters of the American Red Cross yesterday showed the drought relief fund had reached $4,207,941, and that since Wednesday the number of persons being aided had jumped 42,332 to 701,809.

Relief is being afforded to families in 663 counties in the drought area.

The St. Louis headquarters of the Red Cross reported 244 chapters in that area had reached or exceeded their quotas.

cratic forces would be joined, with the exception, of course, of approximately twenty senators who are voting with the President, but not more than ten of whom are getting any "kick" out of the course he is pursuing.

Administration leaders have become apprehensive that with the determination the opposition is showing, its program might be spread. Their only hope of getting out of expensive bonus legislation, for example, is believed to lie in the shortness of time remaining in the present session. And if an extra session is forced, the administration will have no control over the situation in either house.

To Vote in House Today.

On the House side, incidentally, the appropriation committee reported, 18 to 11, against the $25,000,000 proposal, and it was agreed the House will vote on the matter today.

While administration leaders are hopeful of holding their forces in line and sending the Interior Department supply bill containing the proposal to conference, with instructions to the House conferees to refuse the Senate amendment, they are not wholly confident of doing so.

Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, plans to offer a substitute that the President be permitted to distribute the money in any manner he desires.

The Red Cross, which was pitched headlong into the controversy by its refusal or, rather, the refusal of its central committee to take the $25,000,000, bade fair to get just as quickly out of it, in that there is no suggestion anywhere that the money now be turned over to that organization.

John Barton Payne, chairman of the organization, in a statement, denied the organization was playing Mr. Hoover's politics in refusing the appropriation.

Pointing out that the $25,000,000 fund is for general relief and not confined to the drought-stricken areas, he insisted his organization was not in position to administer it.

Denies Political Accusation.

"No thoughtful member or friend of the Red Cross will be deceived by the charge made in the Senate that in refusing to administer a $25,000,000 relief fund the Red Cross is playing politics," he said.

He pointed out that unemployment relief in the cities is being given by the Salvation Army and Catholic, Jewish and Protestant charities.

Senator Robinson insisted the provisions of the Senate proposal were flexible and could be made more flexible on any responsible suggestion. Of course, the Red Cross would not be expected to use any of the fund to give relief where other agencies were doing it, he said, and there is provision in the proposal for the Red Cross to return any unexpended funds to the Treasury.

In urging that the Capper wheat resolution be tacked onto the Army supply measure, Senator Robinson said it had been clearly demonstrated that "the disposition is to do just as little as possible in this emergency and wait just as long as possible.

Caraway Comments on Aid.

Senator Caraway, off the floor, contended the statement of Red Cross agents before the Cramton subcommittee Wednesday that people in Arkansas were being fed at $2 a month per person showed the inadequacy of the relief. Statements that the plantation workers had been budgeted on this amount before the distressed period he described as ridiculous.

Chairman Payne, in describing the Red Cross' refusal to administer a general distress fund, quoted the American Federation of Labor's estimate of unemployed at 5,700,000.

"Assuming this is true," he said, "and that each one represents a family of four, including himself, this ($25,000,000) would provide just a fraction over $1 per person."

The consequences of assuming such an enormous task with a fund so small, he said, "is to invite certain failure and probable disaster."

Red Cross Fund Reaches $78,711 in District Gifts

With $236 received yesterday, the District's contributions to the Red Cross drought relief fund reached $78,711.85. The highest donation was that of Miss Bertha L. Landis, who gave $100. There were three contributions of $25, and the remainder ranged from $1 to $15.

New Apartment Planned On Pennsylvania Avenue

Application for a permit to erect a twelve-story store and apartment building at 2150 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, was filed yesterday with the office of District Building Inspector Oehmann by David A. Baer and Robert O. Scholz, members of the well-known building firm with offices in the Edmonds Building.

The structure will be of concrete and brick and will contain 136 apartments subdivided into 193 rooms. Baer & Scholz are the builders and Robert O. Scholz, the architect. The estimated cost of the building is listed at $350,000. The building will be 122 feet high and 100 feet wide.

INDEPENDENT DRY QUIZ IS PROPOSED

Representative Dyer Urges Inquiry to Determine Legislation Needed.

STATE DEPARTMENT HIT

(Associated Press.)

An independent prohibition investigation by the House judiciary committee was proposed today by Representative Dyer, of Missouri, its ranking Republican member.

Dyer announced he was drafting a resolution for the inquiry after Chairman Graham disclosed that the State Department had refused to allow American Ambassador Morehead to return from Sweden to testify before that committee on the Wickersham prohibition report.

Graham said he was considering taking up the Wickersham report in regular hearings, but that since the department had declined to cooperate he had "no plans." A modification of the Swedish system was suggested by Commissioner Anderson, of the law enforcement body, as a substitute for prohibition in the United States.

Ambassador Denied Leave.

"I asked the State Department to allow Ambassador Morehead a leave of absence in order that he might give us his views," Chairman Graham said. "Secretary Stimson wrote me, declining. There was no explanation."

Dyer said he would offer the resolution at the committee's next meeting.

"Since, in my opinion, it is impossible for the committee to advise Congress on legislation on the basis of the Wickersham report," Dyer said, "I shall ask that we seek authority to go into the matter further, and determine what legislation would be helpful. We need to find out what the commission wants us to recommend—if anything—or to investigate independently every phase of the situation their investigation touched."

$25,000 Is Requested.

The Missourian added he would seek full authority for continuation of the inquiry after Congress adjourns, "with a view to recommending legislation at the beginning of the next session."

"And," he observed, "we won't need $500,000 to do it as the Wickersham Commission did. I believe $25,000 would suffice for us."

Another Missourian—Cochran, a Democrat—is preparing a bill to legalize beer in States without their own dry laws. He said he would introduce the measure next week.

Inquiry Upheld On Investments

(Associated Press.)

The right of the Power Commission to inquire into investments of power companies in licensing hydro-electric projects was upheld yesterday by Justice Adkins of the District of Columbia Supreme Court.

Justice Adkins denied a temporary injunction against the expired Power Commission seeking to prevent a hearing to determine the legitimate investment of the Clarion River Power Co. of Pennsylvania. The commission's accountants had found the "actual" investment of the company to be only 45 per cent of that claimed.

Arguments before Justice Adkins brought a sharp clash between Charles A. Russell, former commission solicitor, and the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission. The latter demanded an apology from the solicitor for accusations he made that the commission had not enforced the laws.

RESALE PRICE BILL PASSED BY HOUSE

Capper-Kelly Measure Permits Contracts in Trade-Marked Products.

CALLED "FARCE, FRAUD"

(Associated Press.)

The House wrote another chapter in the long history of retail price-fixing legislation yesterday by passing the Capper-Kelly bill to legalize such contracts between producers and dealers on trade-marked products.

Amid greater activity and interest than has marked any previous meeting of the short session, a crowded chamber finally brought a close to six hours of debate constantly punctuated with cries of "vote" and sent the bill to the Senate loaded with amendments.

There was no record vote on passage, but a joint plea by Chairman Parker and Representative Texas, ranking Democrat, to return the measure to the commerce committee was rejected, 210 to 147.

A flood of amendments, including such subjects as "unemployment supplies if same are wormy during periods of depression," lead Rayburn to describe the proceedings as "a farce and a fraud."

"No one can tell now what the effect of the bill will be," said the Texan.

Representative Kelly, Pennsylvania, its Republican sponsor, said off the floor he would endeavor to have the bill perfected in the Senate.

On one occasion, a motion by Representative Huddleston (Democrat), Alabama, to kill the bill by striking out the enacting clause was lost by the narrow margin of 133 to 111.

The bill brought before the House permitted a contract between the producer of a trade-marked article and the purchaser which would fix a price for resale of the product and at the same time guard the rights of all retailers in a community.

Before passage, a group of amendments designed to protect the retailer against frozen stocks were adopted.

One by Representative Cox (Democrat), Georgia, would permit the retailer to sell at his own price after giving the vendor opportunity to repurchase his products. Another by Representative Fort (Republican), New Jersey, would permit the retailer to abrogate the price contract if in financial difficulty. A third by Representative Burtness (Republican), North Dakota, would permit him to sell below the stipulated price, but not less than 20 per cent over the purchase price.

STRIKE BY STUDENTS STIRS RIOTS IN SPAIN

ALL UNIVERSITIES CLOSE

Madrid, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Rioting by Republican students flared in Spain today, adding uneasiness to a political situation already muddled by the refusal of all parties, except the extreme right Monarchists, to participate in the March 1 parliamentary elections.

Every university in the country was closed this morning by a general students' strike previously arranged, and the resulting tension caused demonstrations in the cities of Huelva and Santiago de Compostella.

In the former town striking students paraded the streets, shouting for a republic and demanding the immediate release of students and professors imprisoned for participating in the Republican outbreak last month. A number of them were arrested.

Police reserves were rushed to the university at Santiago de Compostella, to retsore order after a Republican demonstration had caused a number of injuries. Several students were jailed.

A demonstration in Madrid was attempted by 50 unemployed men on one of the principal boulevards, but the crowd dispersed without fighting after police gave the alternative of retiring peacefully or yielding to force.

Commissioner Pleased With New Police Radio

Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby is well pleased with the operation of the radio system inaugurated by the Police Department, he said yesterday, after making an extensive tour of the Capital in one of the radio-equipped patrol cars.

While there is a great deal of static in places and "dead spots" in others, the Commissioner expressed the belief that the service would improve after experience had shown what adjustments were necessary.

SIX GAMING CHARGES ORDERED RENEWED

Federal Attorney Informed Assistant Did Not Dismiss Cases.

POLICE FAIL TO APPEAR

Possibility of a new war between the Police Department and the United States Attorney's office seemed to fade yesterday when Federal Attorney Leo A. Rover ordered his assistant, John R. Fitzpatrick, in Police Court, to reinstitute charges in six gaming cases the subordinate had dismissed Wednesday.

The Police Department and the United States attorney's office have been on the "outs," so to speak, for years.

It was learned Mr. Fitzpatrick had nothing to do with the dismissal of the cases, but that Judge Ralph Given had ordered such disposition because the police who were summoned as witnesses had failed to appear. Each of the six cases, it was said, had been postponed five times for the same cause.

That was the reason assigned, although the police involved in the Police Court cases were in District Supreme Court at the time waiting to testify in another case, and had been ordered by Justice Peyton Gordon to remain in the courthouse. The police said they had notified Fitzpatrick's office of the situation.

Mr. Rover asked Mr. Fitzpatrick for an explanation, and on receiving it intimated he believed the subordinate had not been at fault.

Later in the day Mr. Fitzpatrick sanctioned the dismissal of another case for the reason given in the other cases. The case involved Paul Hill, Negro, of Q street near First street northwest. Mr. Fitzpatrick told Judge Gus A. Schuldt the policeman in the case had tried to have the warrant quashed. Judge Schuldt then ordered Hill's release from jail.

MILL STRIKERS VOTE TO RETURN TO WORK

stood that the mill could reemploy immediately from 800 to 1,000 of the strikers and that others could be added when machinery was prepared. He said the workers would immediately apply for reinstatement.

H. R. Fitzgerald, president of the cotton mills, steadfastly refused to meet in conference with representatives of the union, and maintained a policy of silence after his message, "there is nothing to mediate," to Gov. Pollard four days after the strike began. The policy of silence, however, was broken December 14 when he invited the striking workers to return to their jobs. At this time the mill president asserted there would be no discrimination against the strikers except in the cases of those who were known to have unlawfully interfered with the nonunion workers.

The strike, which has been termed the spearhead of the American Federation of Labor's effort to organize labor in Southern mills, was centered around a fight for "recognition of the union." This was apparently interpreted as recognition of collective bargaining by the mills, and Malcolm Harris, attorney for the mills, asserted this would never be recognised.

Mediation Attempts Fail.

All attempts at mediation failed. Such attempts began with an offer of mediation by Gov. Pollard and Secretary of Labor Davis, and his successor, William Doak, followed with equally unsuccessful attempts. The mills claimed their employes had been misled by outside labor leaders and refused to negotiate.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, on December 30, sought to end the strike through an offer of arbitration, but this attempt also failed and the mill management took no official notice of the offer. It was proposed by President Green that differences be submitted to a board representing both mill management and the union and that either Admiral Richard E. Byrd or former Gov. Harry F. Byrd serve as umpire.

Troops Sent to Scene.

The strike, for the most part, was conducted in an orderly manner until the night of November 25, when civil officers of Pittsylvania County appealed to the governor for troops after a demonstration at Schoolfield, the mill village. The requests were renewed the next morning when strikers stopped street cars and automobiles en route to the mills. The troops were still on the scene when the strike ended today, although the number was approximately one-fourth the original strength.

Periodic bombings of the homes of nonunion workers and in one instance the home of a magistrate, marked the final two months of the strike. The guilty parties were never brought to justice.

Throughout the strike, the mills allowed the strikers to continue occupancy of company-owned homes until December, when there were some evictions. No general eviction of workers was ever resorted to and many strikers were occupying mill homes today.

Gov. Pollard Is Pleased.

St. Petersburg, Fla., Jan. 29 (A.P.). Gov. Pollard of Virginia said tonight he was "delighted with the termination of the strike and greatly pleased over the prospect of so many unemployed in Virginia being given work again."

"I have received no word from the commanding officer in charge in Danville and, of course, can make no statement until I have heard just what has taken place," Gov. Pollard said.

Gov. Pollard said the withdrawal of soldiers might depend on when the mill workers returned to work. The governor expressed himself as greatly surprised that the mill workers had voted to end the strike.

der, first degree murder without capital punishment, second degree murder, manslaughter and acquittal.

The final plea of the State, made by Special Prosecutor Ryon, was very aggressive. He reviewed the case from start to finish, stressed a number of facts, and severely criticized the defense for not producing witnesses to prove their assertions.

Says Le Roy Planned Crime.

He reiterated his statement made at the opening of the trial that Le Roy Brady had planned the crime to cover up his previous advance upon Naomi Hall, after his brother had married her, not knowing the facts.

The defending counsel pointed frequently to the unblemished character of the Brady brothers, the friendly relations between the families of Hall and Brady, and the fact that Le Roy Brady planned the readjustment of the fur gun's trigger before he was aware of the marriage.

obtaining about $265. He admits that he was in this city on that date, and says that he was in the theater the night of the holdup. His fingerprints will be compared with those of the Avalon robber.

Baltimore detectives plan to question Phillips about the recent holdup of the Commercial National Bank in that city, where six men obtained about $15,000. It is understood that they will try to connect him with a series of robberies which have been carried out in that city in the last few months.

Paul Taylor, driver of the truck in which the trio planned to make their escape, dashed from the jewelry store of S. Lazerovitz, which was robbed, and drove off, leaving his companions to make their escape on foot. This, Phillips thinks, led to his capture and the suicide of Louis Taylor. Taylor says that he saw a man coming up the street with a shotgun over his shoulder and thought the citizens were mobilizing. This caused his flight.

Paul Taylor Well Educated.

Police believe that this was the first crime of either of the Taylors, who were led by Phillips. They are not related. Louis Taylor is a former resident of the town and is the son of a wealthy nurseryman of Topeka, Kans. Paul Taylor is a graduate of Blair Military Academy, New Jersey, and of Ohio Wesleyan University and is the son of a well-known lecturer.

Louis Taylor's bride of three weeks and Phillips' companion, Mrs. Alfie Olsen, were arrested at the tourist home near Laurel, where the four had been staying, at the same time that Phillips was taken into custody. They were held in the Ellicott City Jail, but will be released today, Lieut. Tom Garrison said. Paul Taylor is also married and conducts a bakery on Connecticut avenue near Legation street northwest.

Carl B. Fritsche, president of the Aircraft Development Corporation, of Detroit, supported the portion of the Parker bill which would allow the Postoffice Department to pay dirigible operators $20 a mile for transporting mail.

"All new forms of transportation the world over have felt the need of Federal aid at their inception," he said. "The airplane has been the darling of the gods, while the airship has been the Cinderella of aeronautics."

Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Navy's Aeronautics Bureau, indorsed the bill and said he thought "every possible encouragement" should be given to dirigible builders because of the probable future military importance of that type craft.

LIMERICK WITNESS IS FREED BY POLICE

JURY SEEKING EVIDENCE

With the release yesterday of Fred Baumann, an acquaintance of Beulah Limerick, the police announced that all available leads have been run down and they now depend upon the proceedings before the grand jury to develop something new.

Baumann was questioned yesterday regarding his knowledge of relationships among the Limerick family. He was then released. Mrs. Ethel Anadale, sister of the slain girl, was a close friend of Baumann, police said.

Nothing of importance was revealed before the grand jury yesterday and the testimony was merely a repetition of that offered before the coroner's jury which decided to hold William E. Paddy, Vernon Limerick, Richard Reed and Patrolman Robert F. Langdno for grand jury action.

Mrs. Martha Bargfrede, friend of the slain girl, resumed the stand yesterday and occupied it for more than an hour. She refused to discuss her testimony, but it was understood she had given no new information.

Others heard during the day were David and William Limerick, brothers of the dead girl; Bob Merchant, a radio entertainer; Siegfried Michaelis, a friend of the slain girl, and several Fifth Precinct policemen.

Hearing Is Opened On Smith Co. Bonds

Room Crowded as Auditor Considers Accounts of Collectors.

A. Leftwich Sinclair, auditor of the District Supreme Court, yesterday began a hearing involving the status of bonds issued by the F. H Smith Building Co., at 815-17 Fifteenth street northwest.

Due to the fact that the court auditor had sent letters to the bondholders, notifying them of the proceedings, the auditor's hearing room was crowded. Mr. Sinclair took action on a court order which referred accounts of court-appointed collectors to his office. The collectors were appointed by the court in lieu of receivers, which had been asked.

Mr. Sinclair's hearing is expected to take up several days. He is to report his findings to the court, including recommendations as to compensation for the collectors.

Man, 33, Arrested For Part in Brawl

Reports That Prisoner Is Wanted in Richmond as Thief Investigated.

Washington police were investigating last night to ascertain whether or not a Negro arrested as result of a brawl in a house on Florida avenue near Fifth street northwest is a badly wanted man in Richmond or an equally badly wanted man in Bladensburg, Md.

The man, James R. Payne, 33 years old, is said to have shot his way through a crowd of men in Richmond January 18, when he was cornered after he had allegedly looted a jewelry store of $5,000 worth of merchandise.

Two days after that affair Payne, who is also known as James Robinson, is said to have sawed his way through the bars of the Bladensburg Jail. He is wanted there on an alleged liquor law charge. Meantime Washington police have placed a charge of assault and carrying a deadly weapon, a r evolver having been found on him. Alexandria Citizens Fail In School Board Protest Council Refuses Plea to Act on Proposed Dismissal of Professor of Military Science; Stormy Session Held.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

An attempt by representatives of practically every civic and patriotic organization in Alexandria to present to the city council yesterday a statement of the circumstances leading up to the request of the city school board for the removal of Col. Clarence Deems, professor of military science and tactics in the Alexandria high schools, met with complete failure, the council declining to receive the document presented, which was signed by approximately 300 citizens of Alexandria disclaiming any jurisdiction over the acts of the school board, declining to have the document read, and finally agreeing to accept it for reference to the school board for such action as that body might see fit to take.

The document in question was presented to Capt. W. Cameron Roberts, and quite a heated interchange occurred between Capt. Roberts and Mayor Carroll Pierce. Capt. Roberts insisting that a hearing had been promised and that he had been invited to present the case to the council, and Mayor Pierce denying that a hearing had been promised or that Capt. Roberts had been invited to present his case to the council, Capt. Roberts explained that he had been invited by City Manager Wallace Lawrence to appear before the council and that he represented the organizations, which had other resentatives also present, which representatives had signed the paper he wished to present.

Mayor's Opening Remarks.

In opening the meeting Mayor Pierce used these words:

"Ladies and gentlemen—This meeting has been called as an informal meeting of council to discuss amongst ourselves some of the civic affairs. This is not a regular meeting and is not open for public business. However, we notice quite a number of people in the room and we suppose they have something they want to say to us. That being the case, we will be glad to hear from anyone who has any remarks to make at this time."

Capt. Roberts then stated he had a talk with City Manager Lawrence on Monday, about a metter which seemed to be one which would warrant investigation by the city council; that since that time the matter had received considerable publicity, but the report he wished to make had been made up before this publicity, and he wished to present it to the council for consideration.

He referred, he said, to a telegram sent last week by the city school board to the commanding general of the Third Corps Area at Baltimore requesting the immediate withdrawal from the Alexandria public schools of Col. Clarence Deems, jr., professor of military science and tactics.

In response to an inquiry by Mayor Pierce, Capt. Roberts stated he represented the American Legion, the American Legion Auxiliary, Cameron Club, United Daughters of the Confederacy, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, Martha Washington Chapter, Order Eastern Star, the Daughters of America, the Alexandria Citizens Association, Daughters of the American Revolution, the Boy Scouts and the Alexandria High School Cadet Corps.

Believe Mistake Made.

Mayor Pierce asked whether this was a matter of administration of the internal affairs of the school, and was told that in the opinion of members of the organizations represented, and probably a majority of citizens of Alexandria, a serious mistake had been made by the school board which would reflect discredit and disgrace upon the City of Alexandria; that the city manager and the city council were equally accountable for what transpires in the administration of the schools, and it is believed right and proper for the city council to take such action as might be necessary to right any wrongs which might have been done.

Councilman Fannon asked whether this was a complaint against a step taken by the school board, and upon being told that it was, introduced a resolution which was seconded by Councilman Herbert, to the effect that the council allow the school board to handle the matter, "since the council has nothing to do with it."

Councilman Fannon, in the interchange which followed between members of the council and several persons in the room, including Capt. Roberts, appeared to base his reasons for refusing to receive and consider the complaint upon the fact that he does not know Col. Deems, knows nothing about the whole matter, and therefore does not consider that the council should hear it. He said he offered his resolution because he felt that if the school board employed Col. Deems, it was "up to the school board to discharge him."

Believes Board Should Act.

Councilman Herbert stated that before becoming a member of the city council he was a member of the school board, and he considered, from his knowledge of that board, that any protests which the citizens of Alexandria wished to make on any matter relating to the schools, should be referred to the school board and that he does not think the matter as it now stands is one for the council to "get mixed up in."

Mr. Fannon again stated that he had "never heard a word of this," and Capt. Roberts replied, "That is just what we are here for—to tell you what it is."

Mayor Pierce stated that "this is not a matter which has reached us, and I do not think we should meddle in it," to which Capt. Roberts replied: "It is reaching you now."

Mayor Pierce called for the expression of council, and Councilman Ticer said: "As I see it, we are presentatives of the people of this locality, and as such should obey them. It is true this is an informal meeting, and the chair has notified everybody present. However, he asked if any one had anything to bring to the attention of the council, he is privileged to do so. One of our citizens is doing that, and I think we should hear him." Mayor Pierce then said: "All I can say is I understand there are no charges to be brought against the school board. If there are none brought of a serious enough nature to be investigated, I can not see how we can take them up. We will vote on Mr. Fannon's motion."

Capt. Roberts then stated that if there was to be any discussion he considered that now was the proper time for it, but Mayor Pierce declined to hear any discussion "until council decides whether it will hear you. This is an informal meeting of the council, there is nothing of this kind up for regular business, and if the council decides to hear your protest we want to hear it."

Resolution Put to Vote.

Mr. Fannon's resolution to leave the matter in the hands of the school board was then put to a vote. Councilmen Fannon, Herbert and Pierce voted to refer it to the school board, and Councilman Ticer voted in the negative. Mayor Pierce then announced: "Council has ruled that we can not hear the matter."

Mayor Pierce then told Capt. Roberts if he had any charges to prefer against the school board or any one else, "now is the time to prefer them. File them in writing so they will be in regular order." Capt. Roberts said, "They are contained in these few pages which I asked permission to read." The following exchange then took place:

Mayor Pierce—Are they charges against the school board which all these organizations wish to bring up?

Capt. Roberts—I should say they are.

Mayor Pierce—Put them in writing.

Capt. Roberts then said: "Mr. Pierce, I think you and the council, with the exception of Mr. Ticer, are giving yourselves a black eye, in the opinion of all those present." This elicited considerable applause from the audience.

Mayor Pierce again addressed the members of the council and asked what their pleasure was, and Councilman Fannon stated he felt the proceeding of referring the matter to the council "ahead of the school board" was out of order and reiterated that "this is the first time I have ever heard anything about this gentleman. If he is an unsatisfactory servant of the school board, then the school board should tell the council just what is the case."

Capt. Roberts informed the council that Col. Deems is on the pay roll of the Government, was assigned to duty in Alexandria by the War Department, without cost to the city, and is not an employe of the city or the school board. Councilman Herbert then abruptly broke in with "I move this matter be referred to the school board."

Mayor Pierce then said: "I want to say to those assembled that there is no use for anybody to approach this question in the heat of anger. Capt. Roberts, in his remarks, would seem to me very uncourteous. Things of that kind prejudice people. This body appointed the school board, but it has nothing to do with the board except to appropriate the money for te schools. Therefore, te school board is where you should proceed and I ask that you proceed in regular form instead of trying to force something on the city council. If the school board has done something which dissatisfies te people teir recourse is to prepare a complaint to te school board. The school board is responsible for what has happened. As the city council knows nothing whatever of its methods, you should present your petition to the school board. They will naturally hear you; they can not do otherwise. Therefore you sould proceed regularly instead of stirring up a lot of animosity and heat by appearing where you ought not to be. I think the school board will give you a courteous hearing and then, if they do not, your next course is to prepare charges against the school board for unfitness in office and bring them before council and we will act. There is no way we can have anything to say without that."

Feels Cause for Anger.

Capt. Roberts then remarked that if he appeared somewhat angered it was not without cause. He had been invited to appear before the council, he said, and his reception, he felt, would anger anyone.

Commander Weil, of the American Legion post, then asked that "some one in authority request the school board to withhold action until a thorough investigation can be made; is not, the general in command of the Third Corps Area can not do anything else but remove Col. Deems." Capt. Roberts stated that the matter was being presented to the council as an appeal from the action of the school board, and Mayor Pierce stated: "I maintain that we are not in authority over the school board." Capt. T. M. Hamilton, at this juncture, broke in with the remark, "You have authority to discharge the board." Mayor Pierce then stated again that if the matter is properly brought before the council it will be considered. "Bring it before us regularly, present your charges and prove them, and we will listen to you," the mayor said.

Councilman Ticer said the council apparently was acting inconsistently.

Councilman Herbert answered Mr. Ticer, and reiterated his opinion that the matter should be referred to the school board.

City Attorney Budwesky then gave an opinion as to the question of authority of the city council over the school board. According to this opinion, the school board is an organization provided for under State law, and is responsible for its acts only to the courts.

Commander Weil stated that it was the wish of the various organizations to bring certain information to the attention of the council, and since that body saw fit to reject it, the information would be given to the newspapers, which would simply mean that the public would become more agitated than would be the case if the council considered the information.

Mayor Pierce then stated that the council "does not want to deny you anything. We are of the opinion that you are not proceeding regularly, and that your recourse is to the school board. That has been explained by our attorney."

Capt. Roberts then asked that the petition be given back to him, so that it could be handled by him.

Meeting Held January 22.

The meeting of the school board which has aroused more feeling in Alexandria than has been known for many years, was held January 22, at which were present Chairman Urban S. Lambert, E. E. Lawler, Mrs. John B. Abraham and Dr. John T. Ashton. Gardner L. Boothe and Mrs. Neta H. Broaddus, the remaining members, were absent on account of illness. After the adjournment of the council meeting yesterday Capt. Roberts and his committee called upon Gilbert J. Cox and asked to be shown the minutes of this meeting, which request was complied with. The minutes of this meeting, which request was complied with. The minutes show that this telegram was sent the commanding general of the Third Coorps Area in Baltimore:

"The Alexandria School Board would request that you kindly relieve Col. Clarence Deems, jr., from further duty with the Alexandria high schools and replace him with another military instructor. In as much as the present school term will end the last of this month we are hoping that you will be able to effect the transfer before the new semester begins in February, thus causing less confusion amongst the boys. The board regrets making this request of you but Col. Deems has been displaying such lack of cooperation that the local school officials feel it has not tended to help the cause of military training amongst our cadets."

Although the minutes of the meeting did not so state, it was stated yesterday by Dr. Ashton that the resolution to send the telegram was offered by Mr. Lawler. The original draft of the message is understood to have been more drastic in its tone, but Dr. Ashton protested the language, later voting to send the message in the form quoted. Dr. Ashton and Mrs. Broaddus, as members of the school board, later sent a telegram to the commanding general of the Third Corps Area asking that he defer any action on the original request until a thorough investigation could be made. Dr. Ashton stated he also wrote a letter to Chairman Lambert, of the school board, asking that a special meeting of the board be called to reconsider its action, but has received no reply, nor has a meeting been called.

Legion Took Action.

The document which Capt. Roberts unsuccessfully attempted to have considered by the council recites that in the first attempt to organize a cadet corps in the local schools two years ago, R. C. Bowton, superintendent of public schools, was very antagonistic to the movement, "placing his own pacific ideas ahead of the expressed wishes of many of the parents of young sons of high school age, and did nothing toward the formation of the cadet corps, the information being given out that the War Department had refused his request for governmental support for such a corps. The American Legion immediately appointed and sent to Washington a committee to interview the proper officials to see what was necessary to be done in order to receive this support from the Government. This committee was greatly surprised to learn that the proper request had never been filed with the War Department by the superintendent of schools requstaing that the local cadet corps be recognized."

Due to the efforts of the American Legioon, approval of the War Department was shortly thereafter obtained, and the cadet corps organized.

"From the very start of this movement the superintendent of schools has made of himself a stumbling block," the statement continues. "In place of cooperating with first Maj. McNeill and then Col. Deems he has done much to retard the progress of the cadet corps, even to the point of insulting the highly trained officers and gentlemen assigned to the Alexandria schools by the War Department to assist in training our youth at no expense to us for their services."

The statement goes on to say that two years ago Mr. Bowton made the statement to State Senator Frank L. Ball in the course of the Alexandria annexation suit that he did not consider a cadet corps a characteristic of a progressive school system, that he did not consider it because he knew school systems that do not have cadet corps that are better school systems than the one under discussion.

Alleged Threat Reported.

The statement goes on: "Mr. Bowton also stated to Col. Deems on July 1 of last year that he was going to 'get' him and the American Legion for the activities of both in furthering the progress of the local Cadet Corps."

Col. Deems recently requested supplies and equipment for use of the corps through the School Board, sending with his request a catalog showing prices of the articles desired. The School Board returned his request as approved and instructed him to order the goods, but said nothing about financing them. As it meant an outlay of $125, Col. Deems informed the board he was not in position to make this outlay from his own pocket.

He heard nthing further in regard to this until last Saturday morning, when He received a telephone request from an officer sent here by the commanding general of th Third Corps Ars to report to the office of the superintendent of schools at the Jefferson School. Upon arrival there he found several of the School Board assembled, together with the inspecting officer, who informed hi mof the request for his removal by the School Board for "failure to cooperate." Col. Deems states that Mr. Bowton, Mr. Lawler and Mr. Lambert then together started making vague accusations which were so incoherent he could gather little from them. Mr. Bowton stated at this meeting that he had "never liked Col. Deems and was determined to have him removed."

Former City Manager Paul Morton, who is now city manager of Petersburg, Va., was a guest at the meeting of the Kiwanis Club yesterday and gave a short talk. The principal address was by Dr. Charles Armstrong, surgeon in the United States Public Health Service.

Urban S. Lambert, president of the Alexandria Water Co., stated yesterday that the water supply in the Alexandria reservoir "is at present only 3½ feet above the level of last November, and unless there is heavy rainfall shortly the city will be faced by a water shortage next summer. The reservoir has a capacity of 600,000,000 gallons, and at present there is not more than a third of that amount."

Dr. Robert South Barrett will speak before an informal tea and entertainment tonight in the Norton Memorial under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Paul's Church, for the benefit of St. Ann's Preventorium in the Blue Ridge Mountains, which was destroyed by fire the past year and is being rebuilt. Music will be furnished by Mrs. Thomas A. Hulfish, Miss Chamblin, Mrs. Harry Kirk, soloists, and Miss Grace Powell, violinist. A free will silver offering will be taken.

SPECIAL PAVING TAX ACT WILL BE SOUGHT

Silver Spring Official to Ask 100 Per Cent Assessment on Bonifant Street.

BAD FAITH IS ALLEGED

The Maryland General Assembly will be asked to enact a special act authorizing the Montgomery County Commissioners to collect 100 per cent assessments for the paving of Bonifant street in Silver Spring, Lacy Shaw, county commissioner for the Silver Spring area, announced last night. Judge Robert B Peter, in Rockville Circuit Court yesterday made permanent an injunction restraining J. Forest Walker, county treasurer, from collecting more than 50 per cent of the cost in the test case involving the property of Carl E. Burre.

Judge Peter held that the act under which the assessment was laid provides only for a 50 per cent assessment for street paving. The decision affects the property of 26 other property owners who have suits in court involving the same principal.

In his announcement last night Commissioner Shaw charged residents of the street with bad faith. He stated that the property owners had been informed that their street could not be paved unless they were willing to pay the entire cost and that 90 per cent of the owners attended a public hearing at which they agreed to pay the entire cost. The street was paved because of this agreement, Mr. Shaw declared. The property owners then took advantage of a technicality of law to get out of paying their full share, he said, after the paving had been completed. Most of those who filed suits were present at the hearing in which the agreement was made, Commissioner Shaw said.

The members of the county delegation will be asked to enact the special act this session of the legislature.

BANKER URGES PLAN TO CURB 'SCALPING'

HEARD BY SENATE BODY

(Associated Press.)

The Senate banking investigating committee received a suggestion yesterday that Federal Reserve rediscount rates be maintained at a higher level than those on commercial loans, to minimize or eliminate "scalping" operations.

B. W. Trafford, vice chairman of the First National Bank of Boston, said it was "poor banking" to borrow from Federal Reserve institutions at low rates and loan to stock brokers and dealers for speculation at much higher charges.

The financier also recommended continuation of security affiliates of national banks under simultaneous Federal supervision with the banks, but said he saw no need in New England for extension of branch banking, as has been proposed by J. W. Pole, Comptroller of the Currency.

Advises Segregation.

He advocated segregation of national banks and corporate affiliates through corporate trusteeships, but said that the affiliates' books should be examined by the Comptroller of the Currency when the banks' books are checked, to discourage temptation of managements to do "crooked things."

To abolish affiliates, he said, would place national banks at a big disadvantage with State and private banks.

To offset a "very serious dropping out of the reserve system" by New England banks, he suggested that banks be encouraged in every way to become members.

Extension of branch banking in New England, he said, would lead inevitably to a race by the larger banks to buy up smaller institutions and unnecessarily enhance the capital stock of the latter.

Strengthen Weak Units.

He said he thought weak units in the banking system might be strengthened by closer affiliation with larger banks to permit diversification in business in one-crop regions, but added this situation was taken care of in New England.

Chain banking was working "pretty well" in that section, he said, but was not spreading. He said he saw no reason to fear that chains of banks might get control of the Reserve System through memberships.

Mr. Trafford said the 1928 and 1929 stock collapses could not be blamed on any evils in the banking laws, which Chairman Glass, of the investigating committee, wants to amend to curb the flow of credit from the Reserve System to the stock market.

The Boston financier was the only witness yesterday. George W. Davison, president of the Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co. of New York, will be heard today.

Block of Marble Kills Two Men

800-Pound Slab Falls at New Masonic Temple at Baltimore.

Baltimore, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Three men were hurled nearly 100 feet today when an 800-pound block of marble slipped from a crane as it was being put in place on a new Masonic temple here.

Two of the men died at a hospital and the other was reported in a serious condition. A fourth man escaped injury by clinging to the wall as the stone fell. The two who died were Walter Graham, 35, a stonecutter, and William Dorn, 20, an apprentice. Peter Van Piguel was injured.

The four men were at work on a scaffold a few feet below the second story when the stone fell. Three were hurled into the basement.

Prisoner Is Slain, Ending Jail Break

Arkansas Sheriff Kills One of Seven Who Try to Escape.

Fayetteville, Ark., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—One prisoner was shot and killed and another seriously wounded in an attempt of convicts to escape from the Washington County Jail here today.

Harold Meeghan, 25, of Oklahoma, awaiting sentence for robbery and arson, was killed by the accidental discharge of Sheriff Henry Walker's gun in a fight between officers and seven prisoners, armed with iron bars and knives, who were bent on escaping.

Curley Reeves, another prisoner, was beaten unconscious. Reinforcements subdued the prisoners. A coroner's jury exonerated Walker.

Police Average High.

Washington police, with an average of $5 for each member of the police department, will make a 100 per cent showing in the Community Chest drive, according to a statement made yesterday by H. M. Luckett, chief clerk for the department.

Luckett declared that 9 of the 18 precincts and bureaus already had gone "over the top" in their subscriptions, and that he was confident the remaining precincts would make the same report today or tomorrow. Police hope to raise $6,729 as their part of the contribution to local charities.

Headquarters of the midcity division of the campaign workers was the center of attraction for hundreds yesterday. Six babies from the Florence Crittenton Home were placed in their cribs and placed in windows on the Fourteenth and G streets sides of the building.

An improvised nursery has been set up so that the babies may have their naps and food on regular schedule. Three nurses from the home are in constant attendance.

McCarl Is Victim Of His Own Ruling

Claim for $218.99 Refund on Gasoline Taxes Held Up as Incomplete.

The laugh was on Comptroller General McCarl yesterday in the District auditor's office as a claim for a refund of $218.99 on gasoline taxes was being considered.

Mr. McCarl had made a ruling that claims for refunds, allowed when the gasoline is used for Government official business, should be made within 30 days of the date of purchase. A few days ago he sent in his claim to the District collector of taxes, but failed to show that the gasoline had been bought within 30 days.

While no action has yet been taken on the claim, which was turned over to the auditor's office for a ruling, it will likely be disallowed unless Mr. McCarl produces evidence to show that the gasoline was purchased within the time limit.

Spring Painting Is Urged Now to Aid Unemployed

An appeal to home owners to have their spring painting done at once was issued yesterday by the District Committee on Unemployment after a delegation from the Painters Local Union, No. 368, had called on George J. Adams, secretary.

Out of a membership of 750, the delegation stated, 350 painters are without work. Practically all these men could be given jobs, it was said, if the customary spring work were made available now.

SEWER, WATER LEVY CUTS TO BE SOUGHT

Board of Trade Group Will Ask Commission's Aid to Amend Law.

ATTACKS BORLAND ACT

The District Commissioners will be urged to take action looking toward the equalization of sewer and water assessments with paving assessments under the substitute for the Borland law by the sewer committee of the Washington Board of Trade, it was decided yesterday.

Rufus S. Lusk, chairman of the committee, at a meeting yesterday pointed out that the new bill had taken steps to remedy injustices to property owners in the clause dealing with paving assessments, but that nothing was said about sewer and water assessments. Thus, he said, owners of triangular and irregular-sized lots would still pay more for sewers and water, while paving inequalities had been more or less adjusted by the terms of the bill.

He cited the case of one property owner who had paid $1,200 for a lot and then found that he was to be assessed almost $1,300 for sewer and water connections.

The new Borland law provides that the maximum linear front foot assessment for paving shall not exceed $3.50 and that the total assessment levied shall not exceed the number of square feet of area, multiplied by one-tenth of 1 per cent of the assessment, and shall not exceed 20 per cent of the value of abutting property.

The committee also authorized Mr. Lusk to write the Commissioners a letter seeking to have them urge legislation to reduce the assessments for sewer connections.

The assessment is now $3 per foot. It was pointed out by the committee that the price of installation has dropped decidedly in the last few years and that the assessment was fixed at peak prices. Members of the committee held the view that under the $3 assessment the property owner is actually paying more than the cost of installation.

The committee will urge that the assessment be reduced to $1.60 per foot.

PETITION HELD BACK BY UTILITIES BOARD

SNARL IN VALUATION

The petition to modify the electric rate consent decree has been in the hands of the Public Utilities Commission more than two days now without being approved, it was learned yesterday afternoon and thus Corporation Counsel William W. Bride has been prevented from filing the document in the District Supreme Court with the speed that the commission has recently demanded.

A heated clash between the commission and thier counsel, Mr. Bride, resulted when the corporation counsel failed to furnish an opinion on the decree as quickly as the utilities body thought he should, and instructions were issued before the opinion was received. While Mr. Bride submitted the opinion two days later anyway, the commission adhered to its position.

In accordance with his second instructions Mr. Bride prepared the petition as quickly as he could get the necessary data from the utilities body and submitted it for approval and an oath as to correctness. Harleigh H. Hartman, legal member of the commission, late yesterday informed Mr. Bride that he had not had time to complete his examination of the document.

Rumors are current, however, that the matter of valuation, which is of necessity but a guess in the petition, is proving a snag as the commission fears that the petition may be thrown out of court because of this uncertainty. The original valuation figure in the agreement between the Potomac Electric Power Co. and the utilities body, which was $32,500,000, was but a compromise valuation. To this has been added the cost of additions made by the company, "undepreciated but weighted," over the last six years.

A FEDERAL DOLE.

The House committee on appropriations has voted disapproval of the Senate amendment to the Interior Department bill appropriating $25,000,000 for the support of unemployed persons throughout the United States. Contrary to general belief, this proposed expenditure would not be for the relief of drought sufferers only, but would be for the relief of all victims of unemployment.

The Red Cross refuses to undertake the relief of the unemployed in the United States by means of a dole of $25,000,000 from the Government. It will continue to administer relief to drought victims, obtaining funds by voluntary popular subscription.

Senators who have undertaken to establish the unemployment dole have confused the public by harping upon the drought situation, permitting the people to suppose that the $25,000,000 is intended to assist the Red Cross in rescuing drought victims. These senators are now driven to the necessity of looking about for an agency that will undertake unemployment relief with the pittance of $25,000,000. No organization that has a grain of common sense will commit itself to such a crazy scheme.

If the Senate is in earnest in its desire to establish a dole for the unemployed it should vote for an appropriation of at least $100,000,000. There are about 2,500,000 persons on the dole in Great Britain, and the cost to the British treasury runs into several hundred millions of dollars annually. With 5,000,000 on the dole in the United States the cost would be at least $300,000,000 a year, not counting the cost of administration.

The contemptible sum of $25,000,000 voted by the Senate is proof that the proposal is not seriously intended as a means of relieving hungry unemployed. It is a political move, intended to embarrass President Hoover, who is opposed to a Federal dole. The persistence of the Senate has the disastrous effect of discouraging popular contributions to the Red Cross. If the drought sufferers of Arkansas and other States should go hungry it will be due to the action of the Senate.

The House of Representatives can be depended upon to distinguish between Red Cross drought relief and a Federal dole for the unemployed of the country. The House is also in a good position to detect the reasons why some senators are willing to play politics with public distress. If the House should conclude that money from the Treasury should be paid out to support the unemployed it will undoubtedly increase the proposed appropriation to $100,000,000 or $200,000,000, because a few millions would be swallowed up in organizing the new dole system itself.

The American method of dealing with unemployment adversity is through local self-help, by townships, counties, towns, cities and States. The country is abundantly able to care for its unemployed, besides maintaining the Government at Washington. The people expect the Government to attend to its specific duties. They are not asking charity from the Treasury which they themselves maintain by taxes. Treasury money is earmarked for strictly governmental purposes. It is a gross and stupid perversion of the American system to demand that the Government shall support the people. The House of Representatives can be expected to compel the Senate to abandon this proposal.

GEN. BUTLER'S COURT-MARTIAL.

An officer holding high rank in the United States Navy, having cast reflections upon the chief minister of a friendly state, it became the duty of the Secretary of State to tender an apology to the personage and state in question, and the duty of the Secretary of the Navy to order the officer tried by court-martial.

Secretary Stimson's apology to Premier Mussolini, transmitted through the Italian Ambassador, makes it very clear that the American Government and people regret that an officer wearing the uniform of the United States Navy should have so far forgotten his position and his duty as to offer a gratuitous insult to the head of a foreign government. The fact that an official apology has been forwarded and a court-martial ordered is sufficient evidence that the offending officer makes no denial of the utterance attributed to him. The trial will afford him an opportunity to offer an explanation. The public version of the speech is of such a character as to raise doubts of his ability to offer anything whatever in extenuation of his offense.

Whatever the outcome of the court-martial may be, beneficial effects may be expected from the prompt action of the Secretary of the Navy in calling this officer to account. In times past too much leniency has been shown toward certain spoiled children among naval officers, with resulting damage to Navy morale. Any naval officer who can not regulate his conduct to the proprieties of the service must be subjected to discipline for the sake of the Navy itself.

BY GRACE OF LLOYD GEORGE.

Ramsay MacDonald has emerged victorious from the first vital test of his government in the present session of Parliament. By the comfortable margin of 27 votes the trades unions' disputes bill was passed in its second reading by the House of Commons. The Conservatives voted to a man against the government and were joined by eight Liberals. One Liberal voted with the Labor delegates, but all the other Liberals accepted the decision of a party caucus and refrained from voting. Ramsay MacDonald continues in office by the express sanction of the party that holds the balance of power, namely, Lloyd George's Liberals. Having survived the second reading of the trades unions' disputes bill it is generally held that Labor's road will be smooth for the time being.

Next week the elections reform bill is scheduled to be brought before Parliament. Mr. MacDonald's promise to introduce and support this bill was the price exacted by Lloyd George for agreeing to the coalition that enabled the Labor party to form the government. Of recent years, under the British electoral laws, the Liberal party has been polling a popular vote far in excess of its proportionate representation in the House of Commons, and it is the purpose of the reform bill to set up a new system under which representation will more closely parallel the popular vote. The Labor-Liberal coalition obviously is able to do about as it will with any measure introduced in Parliament. The vote on the trades disputes bill seemingly indicates that Lloyd George, with the support of Ramsay MacDonald, will be able to put through the elections reform measure.

What will happen after that bill passes is problematical. The Liberal party will be assured of additional seats in the House of Commons under the reforms; hence it would be to Lloyd George's advantage to defeat the Labor government. Although Mr. MacDonald is secure while he has Lloyd George's support, he can not count on this support when it is in Lloyd George's interest to quit the coalition.

THREATENED STAGE CENSORSHIP.

The New York stage has been under fire for several years. Following the war a wave of indecency swept Broadway, and, despite the fact that on several occasions producers have promised publicly to clean house, conditions have steadily grown worse. There is ample evidence that the public revolts against these conditions.

The climax of this wave of resentment may be reached in Albany during the present session of the State Legislature. A bill will be introduced in the near future creating a State bureau of censorship for the New York theater, providing for the licensing of every production before its opening and empowering the official censor to refuse a license to any production which he finds to be "obscene, indecent, immoral, inhuman or sacrilegious in lines, words, action, presentation or costuming, or of such a character that its public exhibition would in any manner corrupt morals or incite to crime." Provision is made for temporary licenses for productions which the censor can not review before the opening, and for appeal to the board of regents by those refused licenses.

The people of New York in common with all Americans abhor censorship. As a general thing it is best to rely upon the good taste and common sense of the American people to dictate the kind of entertainment they will support financially. Conditions in New York, however, have reached a stage when drastic action must be taken. The stage has only itself to blame if censorship is thrust upon it.

HOSPITALS FOR VETERANS.

Agitation for immediate payment of veterans' adjusted compensation has had one beneficial result in calling attention of Congress to the urgent need for more hospitals for the disabled. Legislation to expand hospitalization facilities is clogged in the House. Unless immediate action is taken it can not be enacted at this session of Congress.

There has been a widespread feeling that conversion of the soldiers' insurance into cash would preclude any action for further relief of disabled veterans. This seems to explain the hesitation of the American Legion in its indorsement of a cash bonus. The Disabled American Veterans of the World War and other former service men's organizations are extremely anxious to have hospital facilities extended, regardless of what is done about the adjusted compensation. With commendable unselfishness the rank and file of veterans place care of the disabled above any means of relief for those who may be in financial distress.

As a result of this attitude expressed in hearings before the Senate finance committee that body voted to take up the question of additional hospitals in an effort to force legislation through before March 1. The proposal encountered no opposition in the committee, and it will probably encounter none in Congress, unless it comes from members who want hospitals built in their home States or not at all. State lines ought to be obliterated for the purpose of locating these institutions, so that they may be placed according to density of disabled veteran population.

Congress has an inescapable obligation to care for former soldiers who are now disabled. The bill providing additional hospitals ought not to interfere with plans for relief of unemployed veterans, but if it should come to a question of choosing between the two at this session of Congress there seems to be no question as to which should be given preference.

PILED-UP SAVINGS.

The savings of the American people during the depression year 1930 are indeed impressive. A report of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks estimates that savings increased $1,000,000,000 during that twelve-month period. This gives an indication of the store of capital that is on hand for the revival of business and industry.

Most of this vast increase in savings probably comes from two sources. Funds that were formerly used for the purchase of stocks have been placed in savings banks until the market becomes steadier. People have curtailed their activities and consumption of goods as a result of the depression and have saved their money. There has been a general fear on the part of workingmen that their jobs were not secure. As a result they have laid aside whatever they could to carry them through unemployment if it should come.

This accumulation of capital tends to offset the accumulation of surplus goods at the beginning of the depression. Money rates are low and there are many inducements for renewed business activity. While the Nation has been running at slack pace it has been gathering energy for a renewal of its former stride. One section of the population has suffered from unemployment, but another has been able to build savings accounts to a new high peak. When the money now being saved is again allowed to flow into the consuming market hard times will begin to disappear.

THE REAL FARM PROBLEM

By JAMES E. BOYLE,
Professor of Rural Economy, Cornell University, in the New York Herald Tribune.

For the first seven or eight years after the World War the farm relief program was discussed in Congress and elsewhere as purely a marketing problem. During the first three or four months under the agricultural marketing act of June, 1929, marketing was still being considered as the major problem of farm relief. A way was to be found for marketing the surplus without depressing the price. Indeed, the more optimistic supporters of the new law took the position that the surplus could be either dumped abroad or withheld at home in such a manner as both to elevate and stabilize the price.

During the last ten or twelve months, however, the farm relief program has shifted from a marketing program to an acreage reduction program. The farmer is now told that the present surplus of wheat, cotton and other commodities has caused the price decline, and that the remedy lies in his own hands, and is very simple, namely, acreage production.

In short, according to the new viewpoint, blind production is the disease, and the cure for this disease is the adjustment of production to the needs of the market.

Why this shift in the farm relief program from marketing to production?

This shift came because of a profound but reluctant realization of the truth that the farmers' troubles were due fundamentally to disorderly production rather than disorderly marketing. This belated realization also took note of the fact that disorderly production went hand in hand with disorderly land utilization.

If the land be considered as a factory or plant for producing food then we see that the farmers have been operating at full capacity too big a plant. Many times in our history we have had a rapid overexpansion of our agricultural plant followed by a painful readjustment. Agriculture is asking for economic equality with big business. One reason big business is big is because it plans ahead and adopts a long-time policy based on these plans.

The Bell Telephone Co., for instance, has made economic surveys of many States and has mapped these States for a 50-year program of expansion. The great electric power concerns have built dams and made their plans in many cases for the next 50 years. The anthracite interests of Pennsylvania have surveyed the ground and blocked out their plans for the next 100 years.

Contrast this with our agricultural development in the last fifteen or twenty years. During the ten-year period ended in 1919 some 40,000,000 acres of our pasture land were plowed up and put in crops, and 5,000,000 acres of our forests were cleared for crops. This was overexpansion. In the next five years, 1920 to 1925, about 31,000,000 acres of farm land went out of use. Overexpansion was, therefore, followed by sharp contraction.

This unwarranted and tragic overexpansion of our farm land has been due in part to war prices, in part to promotion schemes, land settlement enterprises, colonization efforts, Federal reclamation policies and public and private booster movements of various kinds.

If we make an inventory of these agencies we are surprised at their number and activities. It includes private land companies, the railroads, the cities, the States and the Federal Government, each one acting independent of all the others. This does not cause orderly development; it causes chaos and anarchy in land development and land utilization.

Marvelous, but Monotonous.

SHORT CIRCUITS.

Evidence Not Needed.

Atlanta Constitution: Chicago officials have discovered "evidences of graft," but the public have known the graft was there without such evidence.

The Widening Mind.

Atchison Globe: When a man reaches the point where he realizes that the person who disagrees with him may be right he has begun to become educated.

A Good Excuse.

Boston Transcript: It used to be customary in New York to deposit a flagon of rum with the coins and newspapers laid away with cornerstones, which may explain the present fever in that city to raze every building that was erected before prohibition, on the pretext that a new skyscraper is needed in its place.

Who Wants to Be a Genius?

Kansas City Star: A genius, according to a speaker before the American Association for the Advancement of Science, is "a person whose mind grows faster than his bones." Presumably it follows that if we should exercise our minds a little more they might at least catch up with our bones. But, tak, tak, who wants to take the risk of spraining his brain just to become a genius?

Women Break Through.

San Francisco Examiner: At last the Boston & Maine Railroad will permit the use of nicotine in its dining cars. The after-dinner cigarette, or even the pipe, will not be withheld from patrons any longer—thanks to the women. Men bowed to the iron rule, but the fair ones insisted on lighting up—with the "what are you going to do about it?" look in their eyes. So the railroad gave in.

It's no use trying to repress women. Excluded from equality with men in the saloons, see what happened. Not to women, but to the saloons.

PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS.

Cities, townships and counties in the United States, according to Chairman Woods, of the Federal emergency committee for employment, are planning to spend $900,000,000 for public improvements as rapidly as feasible. Of the sum $700,000,000 is available, with the remainder to be ready as soon as bonds, already approved, are sold. Ordinarily, many of the projects to be undertaken would be spread over several years. The need to take up slack in labor by every practicable means explains the accelerated pace contemplated. It is a logical movement, says the Indianapolis News, a policy that is not only justified but sound when there is care to prevent waste in disbursements, and the enterprises are worth the money paid for them.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE HEATING PROBLEM.

She said she thought the room too cold;
He rose upon the spot
And said: "If I am not too bold,
I'll say the room's too hot!"

Now since our welcome guests they were
I wondered what to do;
Should I increase the heat for her
And cook her husband through?

To please them both was my desire,
But plainly I could not
To her who shivered furnish fire
And cool her husband hot.

A thin and sleeveless gown she wore,
Her lovely neck was bare;
The man with serge was covered o'er
Against the wintry air.

I know no earthly way to plan
Both him and her to please,
The temperature that suits the man
The thin clad wife will freeze.

I merely do the best I can
To please the friends who call;
I open windows for the man
And get his wife a shawl.

Hoarded Money Won't Save Him if He Has Thrown Away the Capacity to Enjoy It.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

YOUNG men of unusual intelligence and middle-aged men of all kinds give serious thought to the business of laying up something for old age and times of trouble.

They begin savings accounts or buy endowment insurance or join building and loan associations—determined, while their earning capacity is undiminished, to store up money for a time of need.

It is a wise plan, practiced by the ants and bees and other creatures long before man developed sufficient wisdom to follow it; but man doesn't live by bread alone and his preparation for hard times must include something more than the saving of money.

There is, for example, the matter of reputation.

When a man's job and money are gone, or his business near the rocks, there is no other kind of collateral that will serve him as a good reputation will.

If the world knows him to be a man of honor and sound sense, who keeps his word at any cost, lives within his means and pays his debts to the last farthing, the help he needs may be had for the asking.

But if he is known as a ne'er-do-well—as one who buys more than he can hope to pay for and thus lives at the expense of other men—as one who makes great promises and feels no obligation to keep them—as one who borrows and doesn't repay—as one who expects much and gives as little service as he can in return—then his pleas for help will gain him nothing more substantial than sympathy, and the polite regrets he hears will mean: "No; you're no good, and I wouldn't trust you with a lead nickel."

And the provision a prudent man makes for old age will include other things no less important than the world's good opinion.

No longer able to make friends, he will find comfort in the understanding companionship of old friends won long ago.

No longer able to share the world's activities, he will find solace in a capacity for the enjoyment of good books and meditation.

The ability to find entertainment in his own mental resources; a sympathetic interest in new ideas; a conviction that nothing is worth more than a tranquil mind and a clear conscience—these are treasures he can store up in his prime, and without which old age will find him destitute.

PRO AND CON

The Senate as a Litigant.

Minneapolis Journal.

The Senate prepares to take to court its fight to force President Hoover to send back for reconsideration the appointments of three Federal power commissioners, once approved by the august solons, but now on the blacklist of Senators Norris, Walsh, of Montana, and some others who evidently fancy that they were elected to run the White House as well as the Senate chamber.

Aside from a waste of its own time and the courts' time, it is difficult to see what the Senate can accomplish by its present course. Even if the three commissioners were so palpably unfit that the public welfare urgently required their ouster from office, the Senate would be without power to kick them out.

Against Veterans' Bond Issue.

New York Times.

The position taken by Secretary Mellon, together with that known to be held by the President, makes it certain that if any such legislation is enacted by Congress it will be vetoed. No other course would be open to an administration sworn to guard the public interest. But before the need of that action arises, there ought to be such an expression of popular sentiment, such protests from men responsible for great affairs, who are working night and day to bring back better times, as shall convince Congress of the folly and mischief of what is proposed. The country has had due warning. Now it should take note of it and act upon it.

Editorial Prerogative.

New York World.

Of course, what President Hoover should have done was to return the report with a perfunctory note to the effect that rejection implied no lack of literary merit, &c.

Red Cross Carries On.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The Red Cross, through its central committee, has refused to administer the $25,000,000 relief fund voted by the Senate. This is a wise step. The proposal to contribute to this organization from the National Treasury was unsound on any basis, but particularly unsound in that it would seriously impair the usefulness of the Red Cross, force it to duplicate the activities of other relief agencies and turn it from its traditional custom of depending upon the generosity of the public for its funds.

The Red Cross in two weeks has raised about $4,000,000 of the $10,000,000 which it has asked for. If it had not been for this Senate proposal to raid the Treasury for funds to be administered by the organization the campaign probably would by this time have been completed.

George Is Right.

Atlanta Constitution.

The protest made in the United States Senate on Monday by Senator George, of Georgia, against unwarranted invasions of the home of a citizen in order to enforce Volstead act prohibition, will be strongly echoed from every part of the country.

The American people are unwilling that their homes shall be turned into free hunting grounds for spies, snoopers or police officers, who are without legal foundation for their suspicions of law violations and unauthorized to enter without a duly issued search warrant, naming the person or thing to be searched for and seised if and when found.

It Isn't Done.

Indianapolis News.

It is not considered proper legislative etiquette to ask a senator or representative whether he has read any bills, including those he has introduced.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Neglect and Indifference as to National Preparation Revealed in Pershing Memoirs.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In a recent letter by Arthur Gibson Morse to the editor, he stuck his spade into the right place, but why did he not go deeper? Much soil must be thrown out before we strike rock on the subject of adequate preparation, so that, on occasion, this Nation may be able to strike effectively and promptly, for as was so well said by our late Secretary of War, Good, "even the saving of a day may mean victory." Put the other way, the loss of a day might spell defeat.

Long before the great war, when Gen. Wood was at the head of the general staff, conditions were deplorable. When he sought, by common sense methods, to correct them, bureaucracy gathered all its cohorts to thwart him and tried to make it appear that "he d'' not know the game" because he was not a West Point man. It seemed that the President frowned upon his plans, even when they seemed to others to be proper, because Wood was such a close friend of former President Roosevelt, and then a rider was put on an appropriation bill to force him off the staff, but somehow the bill was vetoed.

Although the succeeding administration was of the opposite party, those unfortunate conditions continued, and the only defense the country could claim was the succession of notes to Germany by the President, after we were "in" on the war. See what Gen. Pershing says about the situation at that time:

"We were called upon to make up in a few months for the neglect of years, during which self-satisfied provincialism and smug complacency had prevented the most elementary efforts toward reasonable precaution to meet such an emergency."

May a kind heaven prevent our ever being caught in such abject circumstances again.

If we could spend as much as $1 a year, per head of our population, in the kind of preparation which these men of experience know that we need, we can never again be caught so unprepared as we always have been in the past.

Then, to "make up in a few months" was tremendously expensive. Contracts were let on a cost-plus plan and conscienceless contractors compelled slow work, to make costs higher. A plumber who could wipe seventeen or eighteen joints a day was permitted to wipe but three, and other work was carried on in a similar fashion. Draft men? Yes, but draft facilities, too, put profit out of reach, and pay on the field and in the shop on the same basis.

There is ample opportunity for patriotic legislation and provision against the recurrence of such abuses as the Nation suffered and is still suffering.

G. A. ROSS.

Ohioan Says His State Has Had Great Honors and Should Grant Honor to Louisiana.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Another voice is raised in behalf of the State of Louisiana that she be not forgotten when the new avenue is christened. Some have thought that Ohio should be given recognition, for she has suffered sadly in the price of a back street that will soon disappear altogether.

No doubt the State on the gulf ought to have a street and some of the Buckeyes are entirely willing to let the name go there, because Ohio has made quite a mark on Washington, in several ways, and it would be discourteous to "claim everything," which is no doubt fair in election times, though not now.

There is the Grant Park and a McPherson square, and there are equestrian statues of both men, as there are of Sherman, Sheridan and McClellan (who was made a major general by the Governor of Ohio), and there is the heroic statue of Gen. Garfield.

Washington has seen much of Ohio since 1861. Mr. Lincoln put Gov. Chase in the Treasury and Mr. Stanton became Secretary of War. With John Sherman in the Senate and Jay Cooke to provide legislation and produce the cash the war could go on. Later, Chase became chief justice of the Supreme Court and was shortly followed by Waite and later by Taft, and Messrs. Day and Clarke were also members of that tribunal.

In the State Department were Sherman and Day and Hay and in the speakership of the House, Kiefer and Longworth. But how the Buckeyes have inhabited the White House! William Henry Harrison was elected from Ohio, though born in Virginia. Grant and Benjamin Harrison were born there, but elected from Illinois and Indiana, respectively. Hayes, Garfield, McKinley, Taft and Harding were all born in Ohio and elected from their native State. Isn't that enough for Ohio without having a street five blocks long named for her? Certainly. Give it to our Southern sister at the mouth of the Father of Waters.

ARTHUR GIBSON MORSE.

Why Not Put More Men to Work on Public Building Program?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Hundreds of buildings in the triangle are waiting to be demolished. Millions are available for new buildings. Large tracts are acquired by the Government. Building operations are at a standstill.

The authorities in charge of the operation serenely and calmly take their time in making a move.

With a little more business in our Government at least 10,000 more men could be employed right now.

H. G. WRIGHT.

Nuisance of Cruising Cabs to Be Abolished on F Street.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: At last the long-prayed-for has come: the obnoxious nuisance of cruising cabs is to be stopped on F street.

No other city would tolerate this as Washington has. None does.

From noon to midnight it has been impossible to cross F street for dodging empty cabs—a line two blocks long constantly circling the business blocks.

May the Commissioners stand firm.

CHURCHILL AT ODDS WITH PARTY LEADER

BOTH CONSERVATIVES

London, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Disclosure that Winston Churchill, fiery and dynamic lieutenant of Stanley Baldwin, virtually had abandoned his position in the inner circle of Conservative party leaders caused a new sensation in British politics tonight.

His action became known with the publication of correspondence between him and Mr. Baldwin in which he revealed that differences over his chief's policy on India had led to his decision to resign as a member of the party's business committee.

This committee, largely made up of former cabinet members, decides the party's policy in parliamentary debates.

Publication of the correspondence led generally to the view that Churchill, whose vibrant personality, brilliant oratory and striking literary gifts have made him one of the outstanding figures of British public life, would not again hold office in a Conservative cabinet and perhaps would retire altogether from politics.

In this connection it was recalled that for some time past rumors have credited him with the desire to accept an important commercial offer.

In one of his letters, the former chancellor of the excequer, while expressing his warm, personal friendship for Mr. Baldwin, wrote that since their differences had become public property he felt he ought not to continue attendance at the business committee's meetings. In an equally cordial reply Mr. Baldwin accepted this view.

Churchill, however, assurred the Conservative leader of his continued support in opposing the "socialist" government.

20 Railway Clerks Injured in Riot

Bucharest Police Fire On Demonstrators, Whose Pay Had Been Cut.

Bucharest, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Twenty demonstrators were reported wounded tonight as police fired on railway clerks and other employes who were protesting against wage reductions. The rail workers held a stormy protest meeting and then began marching up the main street on which the royal palace is situated.

Near the National Theater mounted and foot police attempted to disperse the mob into side streets, but the marchers rushed the gendarmes and the latter fired several volleys into the throng.

In addition to those injured, many others were hurt by the clubs of police. Sventy persons were arrested and quiet was restored after several hours of excitement. A meeting called by the railway men for Sunday was forbidden after today's trouble.

Cosmopolitans Plan To Honor Best Citizen

Award of the Cosmopolitan medal for the "citizen of Washington who has performed the most outstanding civic deed for Washington during the last year," will be awarded at the regular "Ladies' Night" of the Cosmopolitan Club, next Thursday night at the Shoreham Hotel. Announcement was made yesterday by Gordon W. Bonnette, president of the club, at the regular luncheon meeting at the Carlton Hotel.

The committee in charge of the award this year consists of Dr. J. Rosier Biggs, chairman; Gordon W. Bonnette, Judge Michael M. Doyle, William L. King and Fred J. Rice. The club adopted a new constitution at its meeting.

Russian Fugitive Shot As He Nears Refuge

Bucharest, Roumania, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—A little Russian drama was played to a grim end in the chill waters of the River Dniester last night. Roumanian frontier guards posted on the river bank saw a man swimming desperately from the Russian side, with bullets fired by a Soviet patrol spurting the water all about him.

As the swimmer reached land and stumbled up the shore a bullet struck him in the neck and Roumanian guardsmen caught the man just in time to hear him whisper:

"I am Tscherbakow, a member of the National Academy of Fine Arts in Moscow."

Then he died.

PRESIDENT OF CUBA SIGNS NEW TAX LAW

Machado Also Lifts Ban on Two Newspapers With Subtle Warning.

HARMONY IS STRESSED

Havana, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—President Machado, signing Cuba's new emergency tax law adopted to restore the depleted national treasury, let it be known today that he also had authorized lifting of suspension on two of the nine newspapers and periodicals which were ordered to stop publication on January 9.

Tomorrow he will cause to be issued a decree authorizing the Diario de la Marina and El Mundo to resume publication. The action was taken, he indicated, after the publishers had pointed out to him that the interruption in publication was causing serious loss both to the companies and their employes.

There was no indication that similar action would be taken with regard to other suspended journals, but the president expressed a hope that in the future the press would cooperate with the administration. The legislature is considering a new press law which would impose certain obligations upon publishers and their employes, and it was generally expected that all periodicals would be permitted to resume after passage of that measure.

The new economic law, which becomes effective five days after its publication in the official gazette, imposes several new taxes and increases most of the existing imposts.

Junior Optimist Clubs Of Two Cities Are Dined

The Junior Optimist Club of the Boys' Club, of Washington, and the Baltimore Junior Optimists, were guests yesterday of the Optimist Club of Washington at luncheon at the Hamilton Hotel. The Washington youths challenged the Baltimore Junior Club to a basket ball game.

The Rev. Francis J. Hurney, rector of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, addressed the club on "The Shrine of Lourdes." Col. Hubbard, president of the Baltimore Club, and Frank Little, director of the Junior Optimist Club, of Baltimore, attended the luncheon.

GIRL BACKS MOTHER TRIED FOR SLAYING

Public Barred From Court at Charlottesville Because of Testimony.

HUSBAND CALLED FIEND

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 29.—The defense piled up further evidence today to establish its contention that Mrs. Essie C. Smith shot and killed her husband, John A. Smith, Chesapeake & Ohio Railway fireman, to save her own life and that of her 15-year-old daughter.

For six hours the trial continued behind closed doors, Judge A. D. Dabney taking this course because of sordid and "embarrassing" testimony expected.

The defendant appeared confident as she resumed her testimony.

Clarice Smith, the woman's daughter, key witness for the defense, gave her version of the shooting and of the events that led up to it.

Taken in hand by prosecution, she was submitted to a rigid cross-examination which was cut short by the dinner recess. For nearly an hour in the afternoon the prosecution continued trying to shake her story, which was practically that which she told two days after the killing to obtain the release of her mother on bond.

The defense next called to the stand Mrs. Grace Leake, an intimate friend of the accused woman. Her testimony lasted less than half an hour.

Mrs. Smith's version of the killing followed that outlined by Stephen D. Timberlake, of defense counsel, in his opening statement Tuesday — that Smith was a fiend, intent on murdering his wife and daughter if his improper advances toward the girl were revealed.

Vigorous cross-examination, it was reported, failed to shake her from the major points in the evidence. The accused woman related a story of misery and terror which she said her husband's monomania caused in her household.

Crowds stood around the courthouse all day, blocked the way to the doors and jammed the stairway. Scores, mounted on benches, peered through a half dozen windows to obtain sight of the witnesses.

KING TO AID QUAKE RELIEF

At least six persons were killed and many hurt in the area surrounding Koritza, Albania, by a series of earthquakes. King Zog of Albania cut short his visit to Vienna to return and aid those in the stricken area, shown on the map.

Riviera Now Bets On Racing Turtles

Nice, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Games of chance at the marble casino are not the only ways of winning and losing money in this city of overnight fortunes. Poker, bridge, turtle racing and even old-fashioned crap shooting have been introduced by many fashionable hotels, clubs and cabarets.

"Keep the foreigners amused" has become the slogan of many proprietors, and they are sponsoring various contract bridge tournaments for cash prizes. Poker has become particularly popular, with games to be found at many clubs where the limit is from $5 to $25.

At nearby Cannes, on the Riviera, racing turtles are the vogue. Bets on the favorites often go as high as $500. So intrigued have the sporting clubs become with the idea a fast racing turtle brings a fancy price in the market.

Albanian Quake Brings Death to 6

Hundreds Made Homeless by Temblor Which Struck Early in Day.

Vienna, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The earthquake that demolished part of Koritza, Albania, yesterday caused the death of at least six persons, injury to 30 others and made hundreds homeless, travelers who reached Vienna from the Albanian frontier today said.

They described the catastrophe as one of the worst in the Balkans since the earthquake of February, 1927, when nearly 100 persons were killed in Ljubljana and other towns in Herzegovina.

The inhabitants of Koritza were still rubbing the sleep from their eyes when violent swaying of the earth sent them scrambling for the streets. The houses collapsed so quickly, however, that while relatively few were hurt, many found themselves imprisoned behind collapsed walls and piles of debris.

Four Ship Routes Merge With Grace

Lines Operate From West Coast, New York to South America.

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—D. Stewart Iglehart, president of W. R. Grace & Co., today announced the merger of four steamship lines controlled by the Grace interests.

The lines affected are the Grace Line, operating from New York to Columbia, Ecuador, Peru and Chile, via the Panama Canal; the Grace Line Northern Pacific division, from Seattle and San Francisco to Peru and Chile; the Panama Mail, from New York to San Francisco via Columbia and the West Coast of Central America, and the New Orleans and South America Steamship Co., from New Orleans to the West Coast of South America.

The Grace interests have signed a contract with the United States Shipping Board providing for the construction of four 19-knot passenger and cargo vessels for $17,000,000. The work already has been started at the Federal Shipbuilding & Drydock Co., Kearny, N. J.

Infidelity Denied By Wife of Flier

Mildred Avery Arnold Says She Doesn't Know Man Who Made Charge.

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Mildred Avery Arnold denied in Superior Court today charges of misconduct and infidelity, made yesterday in the trial of a divorce suit filed by Leslie P. Arnold, former Army aviator. Mrs. Arnold testified she never knew Frank Lawrence whose deposition, taken in Paris, detailed alleged infidelity on her part when she was left on this side of the Atlantic by her husband who went overseas with the Army Air Corps. In 1920 he was a pilot on the Army's famous flight around the world.

Previously Arnold related he obtained a divorce in Georgia and married Driscilla Dean, motion picture actress. Returning from a honeymoon trip the couple learned of revocation by the Georgia Supreme Court of Arnold's divorce decree from Mildred Avery Arnold.

Arnold and Miss Dean separated and the aviator came to Arizona to establish residence with the announced intention of "obtaining a decree that will stick."

Art of Indians Chief Hobby of Boston Visitor

Miss Wheelwright Here to Confer With Bureau.

Washington boasts many interesting visitors from time to time, and among the most distinguished of them is Miss Mary Cabot Wheelwright, of Boston, who arrived in the Capital yesterday to remain for about a week. She is at the Mayflower.

Miss Wheelwright is interested in various philanthropic works, but her particular hobby is research pertaining to Indian art and lore, which has brought her to Washington where she will confer with the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

She has given an Indian wing to the museum in Albuquerque, N. Mex., having spent many years in collecting rare pieces made by the hands of America's aborigines. Miss Wheelwright has a beautiful home in New Mexico, where she spends much of her time, and during her residence there has made efforts to revive the native Indian industries.

Besides this work, Miss Wheelwright is keenly interested in settlement work in Boston. She is leader in an organization which imports antiques from Spain for sale in this country for the benefit of a musical endowment fund.

Miss Wheelwright has a beautiful home in Winter Harbor, where her yacht lies at anchor, and when she tires of life in this country, she boards the craft for a cruise in foreign waters. She has traveled the world over many times. The boat is sail-rigged and is run without the aid of steam power.

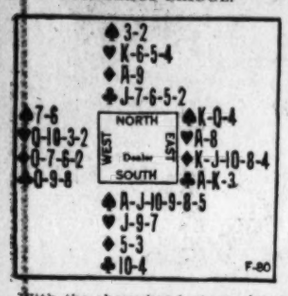
WORK ON BRIDGE

CONTRACT BRIDGE.



With the above hand at an eleven-table Duplicate Contract game, the bidding was not varied. South, West and North passed and East bid two No Trumps which better portrayed the strength of the hand than two Diamonds (all four suits being safely stopped and the count being 20). West, with a count of 6, bid three No Trumps.

At Auction Bridge East would secure the contract with a bid of one No Trump.

The play developed one point of considerable interest. South led the Jack of Spades and some Easts won with the King when North played the Deuce and then established the long Diamonds (there were nine in the two hands); but North winning with the Ace of Diamonds, returned South's Spade lead through East's Queen-four and consequently South took five Spade tricks and Declarer was set two tricks.

Most of the tables, however, played the hand better than that. When the Spade came up to East on the first trick, he realized that South's lead had been from Ace-Jack-Ten and others, at least two others as North had played his lowest Spade. Consequently South could not have the Ace of Diamonds or he would have bid a Spade initially. With the assurance that the lead will come from North after the Ace of Diamonds wins, East should not take the first Spade. One Spade trick will produce nine tricks for East unless South first wins four Spades. If North has three Spades, South can lead the Ten to trick 2 and save game because North will have a third Spade; but South may funk on that easy play or may have six Spades, in which case North will not have one to lead on the third round. With South winning the first trick, it did not matter what he led to trick 2; one Spade, one Heart, four Diamonds and three Clubs won the game at all of the tables where East passed the first Spade.

Jane Corbin INTERPRETS the MODE

Too lovely for words, a spring afternoon ensemble in black and white and yellow! The blouse and skirt are in chiffon, with a yellow moire belt fastened with yellow crystals, and the coat is black crepe marocain belted in yellow suede and trimmed with white fox. (A Dah-ray design.)

Paris, January 29.

"LACE, a material which is a network of threads interwoven in an infinite variety of designs."

In what country did lace originate? Some say that it was in Italy, about the fifteenth century, that embroidery, an art which had existed from earliest history, became more light and airy, and that when the idea of intermingling the threads to give greater strength to the material was born. Others claim that the secret was first brought into France, at Le Puy, by the Pilgrims coming from St. Jacques de Compostelle, who, in turn, learned the art from the Moors. However that may be, it is certain that lace was known in this region, and that lace-making became popular very quickly along the Mediterranean Basin, then in Auvergne, and finally in Flanders and the Netherlands.

Have you heard of the latest Dah-ray invention? Yes, something that the world has eagerly awaited, something indispensible to women, something that goes hand in hand with the new styles, with corsets and girdles, with chic and elegance!

I call it the "Gay '90's Waistlet" for lack of a more descriptive title—because it is something to give one a slim waist such as was the mode in those lively days. One hears of the normal waistline, one wears it even—and one detests that inevitable roll of "whatever" that bulges over one's girdle or corset right where it shouldn't, for the new belt line. That's where Dah-ray's new invention comes in—or goes on, rather, right over one's corset and around the waist to give one a slim waistline without any discomfort or constriction. Wonderful, wonderful, honestly—and you'll say so, too, when you have made one from this week's illustrated leaflet for which Dah-ray hopes you will send to her a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Does any one question that this is going to be a white summer? By far the smartest color—It is not a color, technically, you know—that is being shown at the new collections of the Haute Couture. Usually color touches, running greatly to vividly colored linings, trim the white costume.

This mode is welcome to Miss Limited Pocketbook. Cleverly thought out, she can seem to have a different costume for every day of her vacation—the while it really is only one or two dresses, one coat and many sets of accessories.

How's that for an improvement on straight black and white chic? Thought so. It's black and white, and the lines of the skirt are followed in the cut of the coat—but the coat is heavy crepe, while the skirt is black chiffon. The coat is lined in white chiffon which matches the blouse, and that yellow suede held on the blouse and skirt, which is matched by a similar one on the coat! I am raving about the ensemble I have illustrated for you today, which I think is simply a dream, if you want to know it—even if I did design it!

And even if I did write it, I'm urging you also to read the weekly Dare fashion letter in The Washington Post next Sunday—and every Sunday.

YOUR NAME WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

The family name "Poe" is the modern form of the old English "pawa" meaning "peacock." It was originally applied as a nickname to vain persons or to those who dressed in gay colors. In a few cases it means "he who lives at the sign of the peacock." This name does not seem to be found in the earliest English records. A certain Anne Poe is mentioned in a Yorkshire marriage license of the year 1660.

The family name "Allen" is of English origin. Some of the many variations of this are "Alleine," "Alleyne," "Allan," "Allin" and "Alland." "Allen" was one of the most popular names in England at the time when family names were becoming hereditary. It is said to have come into England with Alan Fergeant, Count of Brittany, a companion of William the Conqueror, and the first Earl of Richmond, County York. In a very short time this name spread to the north of England and over the border into Scotland. As a family name "Allen" means "the son of Alan." The personal name "Alan" is believed by most authorities to be derived from a Latin name meaning "cheerful person." However, this personal name seems to have been confused with a similar name of Celtic origin which means "harmony." Early English records show this name with great frequency. A document of the year 1273 mentions a Henry Aleyn and a Hugh Aleyn.

The personal name "Edgar" is ultimately of Teutonic origin, and may be translated "rich spear" or "blessed spear." This was one of the commonest of Anglo-Saxon personal names. Its old English form is "Eadgar."

What Today Means to You

"AQUARIUS."

IF January 30 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to noon, and from 3 p. m. to 5:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:30 a. m. to 9:30 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2:45 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8:30 p. m.

On January 30, an opportunity will present itself which, if seen and seized, will contribute to your ultimate success. The signs fail to denote its exact nature, but it will be there for those who can see it, and who have the courage to take advantage of it.

A child born on this January 30 promises, without being intellectual, to be intelligent. It will be fearless, and never afraid of taking a chance. A fair measure of success is assured it. In disposition, it will be bright and congenial, but too self-centered to be really unselfish.

If you were born on a January 30, and are a woman, you have great ideas of independence and freedom. You will be a woman's woman and not a man's woman. You will have a will and, incidentally, a temper of your own. The will promises to be exacting: the temper violent. You will want to participate actively in all that is going on around you, and will not be willing to take a back seat. Industry and hard work will characterize you, and a straightforwardness—rather disconcerting at times—will make you stand out from other members of your sex. The fates will favor you, and success will be your portion. This, however, as the years roll by, will not be altogether satisfying, and you will envy those of a less truculent nature.

If a man, you are not ambitious, not overintelligent, and derive more happiness from loafing than from working, although you do what you have to do both conscientiously and meticulously. You will never attain either wealth or power, and you do not crave either the one or the other. Your disposition, however, is very attractive. You are a loyal friend, a congenial companion, an affectionate husband, and a good father. You never worry yourself with "whys" and "wherefores." You go plodding along, with contentment in your mind, and sunshine in your soul. Materially, mediocre; spiritually, successful.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Not Proven.

DEAR Frances McDonald: I am 26, a college graduate, come of a family of means and enjoy life to the full. However, I am not yet in love definitely. "Have heaps of escorts and all that and have scrumptious times but never in love.

Recently I met a most fascinating man, six years older and from the same university. I now feel that I could if I permitted myself to, fall completely in love with him. Here is the rub. He has been around the world several times and says he has had many affairs of the heart but never been really in love with a woman. In other words, a self-confessed sensualist.

It is not too late to give him up and forget him, as feeling his power over me I have purposely held aloof from his undeniable magnetism. I can just see the women falling for him. And can not just see myself following suit without serious considerations regarding the outcome. What do you consider are a woman's chances of ever finding any lasting happiness with a man of such tendencies? My ideas of love are so different.

He has tried to change my ideas. Of course he has not been successful. But the question is could I ever hope to change his? I want to go with him for he is really a superior person mentally and great company. But his spiritual side is what seems lacking. He does not see women as I want my husband to see them.

What I want you to tell me is whether I should drop him. And also state what these people—born sensualists—amount to in later life? Do they ever turn out worth-while people? MILLIE.

A man of many love affairs is not of necessity and merely because of the affairs, a "born sensualist." In fact those seem to be strong and rather cruel words. The greatest idealists have been the greatest lovers and by no means the most constant ones. In fact, we can not see that your case against this poor cavalier is proven at all. And in your place if we found him delightful we should pin no tags upon his soul but enjoy his companionship to the fullest. Men of intellect place women automatically. The worth-while woman finds her mede of tribute at her feet quite without forethought on her own part.

The less one tampers with the spiritual side of man the better. Preachments weary him. What he seeks is essentially spiritual regardless of where or how he seeks it. If you fulfill his dream he will not fail you regardless of how many or how varied have been his youthful love affairs. It is our guess that you are condemnatory in mental attitude and that he is trying to temper this inclination in you rather than to lower your standards. Be less the judge and jury and more the woman and all that you crave will be yours. And that includes spiritual love.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

COLORFUL CROTONS.

OF all the plants that are grown for their foliage there is none that excels the beauty and richness of coloring found in the crotons. There are no two alike. On the same plant you will find leaves that have touches of brown, green and yellow and you will find other leaves of deep orange, dull green and perhaps long streaks of scarlet. The texture of the leaves is good, being almost as firm and much more glossy than those of the rubber plant.

The leaves of the croton are borne in great profusion and their compact arrangement always prevents the straggling appearance which detracts from so many foliage plants. A small croton can lose six leaves and never show the loss.

The croton comes from the tropics; therefore, they must be given a great deal of heat, sun and water.

Frequently, when you first bring them from the garden into the house the crotons begin to shed a leaf or two. When they do this, it is a sure indication that they are not receiving a sufficient amount of heat or humidity. Many fail with the crotons in the house because they do not give them sufficient heat at night. The plants resent this, so if you would be successful with them during the night put them quite close to a warm radiator.

You see, a florist keeps his steam up night and day, while in the average house the steam is shut off almost entirely at night. This is the reason why so many people fail with tropical and subtropical plants, such as rubbers, palms, crotons and ferns.

When you water a croton, which you must do every day, give it a sufficient quantity to wet every particle of soil. Then, in addition, sprinkle very thoroughly. This treatment will prevent the pores from becoming choked with dust and will keep the plant in a state of perpetual health. Sprinkling the foliage also adds to the general appearance of the plant.

While the initial cost of a croton may seem a bit high, when you consider that a plant enhances in beauty as it ages, and that the same specimen does duty in both the living room and the garden, it really is not an expensive plant.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

PREVENTION OF COLDS, IN INFANTS.

(Children's Bureau, Department of Labor.)

Babies are very susceptible to common colds and are frequently made very ill by what is "just a cold" in an adult. All persons having colds or coughs should be kept away from the baby. No one should lean over and talk over a baby, or breathe in his face, since breath carries a fine spray which may be loaded with germs. Some persons, though they apparently have no colds themselves, are carrying germs in their noses or throats which will produce disease in a baby.

Avoid overheating of a room in which a baby lives. Keep the air fresh by leaving a window open a little way. Do not overheat the baby by wrapping him up too warmly when he goes out. If he perspires too freely outdoors he may be chilled when he comes indoors and has his wraps removed.

Never take a baby into a crowded place for some one in the crowd may have a cold and the baby is likely to catch it.

The Life Story of Gen. Wood

By HERMANN HAGEDORN

CHAPTER XXVII.

Through the troubled year of 1915 while Gen. Wood was educating public opinion and developing from small beginnings that "citizenry trained to arms," which, as the President had pointed out, was a democracy's substitute for a standing army, he was developing other projects, which had no precedent for the organization of the Nation's resources. He worked with Samuel Gompers for a training camp for laboring men. With the aid of Charles M. Schwab, he conceived a plan for industrial mobilization in case of war. With Bernard Baruch he discussed the formation of a committee of business executives to run the Government in matters of transportation and the purchase of supplies. He was in constant touch with the greatest minds in the financial and industrial world. With President Loree of the Lackawanna, he discussed the coordination of the railroads of the country with a view to rushing men and supplies to distignated points on the Atlantic seaboard. The matter, indeed, seemed to Wood of such importance that he urged Loree to lay it before the War Department. Loree returned from Washington thoroughly disgusted. The distinguished general who had received him and his committee, he reported, had gone to sleep in the midst of the discussion.

Staff Half Asleep.

The incident was symbolic. The general staff under Gen. Hugh L. Scott was itself not half awake. Scott, who was the most devoted and high-minded of men, was entirely beyond his depth as chief of staff. The influence of the general staff was crumbling. Wood found that his own efforts had to meet not only the opposition of the administration, but the inertia of the War Department.

"The old element of hustle still follows my headquarters," he wrote his former aid, Edward Carpenter, "but it is almost a hopeless struggle. The system of doing business knocks 75 per cent at least out of one's efficiency in all directions, and renders Army administration top-heavy to an extent that would be incredible to a straight-thinking business man. We shall never get rid of it until we put all the permanent staff officers in the line and redetail them when fit."

"The War Department situation as I have heard of," Wood wrote McCoy, "it is beyond words. Pretty much everything that was done has been undone, and our old friend is quite unconscious of the completeness and thoroughness with which the ground has been cut out from under his feet. * * * We can only hope for the best."

As the General Staff became demoralized and ineffective, Wood endeavored so far as his authority as commanding general of the Eastern Department extended, to make the plans and the preparations which the General Staff should have been making. He studied the harbor defenses, designated certain centers for the concentration of troops and had the Eastern seaboard surveyed as far south as the Virginia Capes.

He worked actively that winter with the Plattsburg group. These loyal, ardent men preaching preparedness in the country, were, in a sense, Wood himself talking; the extension and multiplication of his own personality. This was no happy accident. Exactly this was what he had had before his eyes when he formed the first student military camps in 1913. He had established those camps, he wrote St. Loe Strachey, at the time, for the purpose of informing "the great mass of people who are really patriotic" regarding the military responsibility of a citizen in a republic, knowing that if he could bring some conception of this responsibility into universities, colleges and higher technical schools, the debating societies would make it familiar to the general body of students who would then carry it into their homes.

It was an astounding instance of long vision and creative statesmanship. What he had begun in 1913, thousands of men, whom directly or indirectly he had inspired, were carrying forward. They carried it beyond the military arm into the Navy. A naval training association was formed; a naval reserve force was created by Congress. Arrangements were made for setting aside a dozen battleships for purposes of training. The phenomenal effectiveness of the Plattsburg movement deepened Wood's confidence, not only in the justice of his cause, but in the practicality of his method. With an assurance which itself carried conviction, he went over the country preaching universal military service.

Shows How to Train Men.

He was charged with out-Prussianning the Prussians. He quoted the President himself regarding a "citizenry trained to arms," and showed how such a citizenry might be attained, how alone it could be maintained. Even as it was the most efficient form of national defense, so, he pointed out, it was the most democratic.

"There is no logical method of ducking, side-stepping, or dodging it," he declared before a committee of Congress in January, 1916. "Whether they like it or not, men generally realize that the principle is sound. They realize that a man can not exercise the suffrage as a right and assume that he has the privilege of deciding as to whether or not he is to render service in case of necessity."

The logic of all this sank into men's minds. Day in day out, he drove it home, endeavoring to build up a public opinion ready, when the emergency came, to support the Government in any demand which it might make on the service of its sons. (When President Wilson late in 1915 announced his conversion to the doctrine of preparedness, Gen. Wood worked with the Secretary of War in the preparation of a bill increasing the regular Army and making the State militia subject to Federal control. The bill was opposed by a group of National Guard supporters, but the President agreed to support it).

Late in January, 1916, the President embarked on a speaking tour in behalf of preparedness. His appeal deepened in eloquence as he moved Westward, and his language became more emphatic.

Pleased Both Sides.

With extraordinary adroitness he satisfied the people who were against Germany by talking of an enlarged army and pleased those who were against England by demanding "incomparably the greatest navy in the world." His whole tour was an extraordinary skillful exhibition of verbal legerdemain. It brilliantly succeeded in stemming the rising demand for preparedness, and achieved it by the same technique by which the President had subdued the indignation against his inaction in Mexico at the time of the Tampico incident. He had, at that time, become for the moment more insistent on the rights and dignity of the United States than any of his opponents, making a paper record and clouding the whole situation, only to ignore rights and dignity alike the moment the attention of the public was turned elsewhere. By his almost passionate embrace of the cause of preparedness he once more disintegrated the opposition and blurred the issue, leaving the general public under the impression that with everybody demanding preparedness, all must be well, and remained thus free to pursue his opportunistic policy.

On his return to Washington he yielded without a struggle to Hay and the National Guard lobby. Garrison resigned and Wilson appointed an avowed pacifist, Newton D. Baker, in his place. The proponents of real preparedness, thoroughly outwitted, were left bewildered and sputtering. As a political maneuver at the opening of a presidential year, it was immense.

The opposition, as it was, was in confusion. The leading candidates for the Republican nomination were Roosevelt and Charles Evans Hughes; but the antagonism against Roosevelt caused by the split of 1912 was still strong, and Hughes, as an associate justice on the Supreme Court, was detached from public affairs and no one knew where he stood on the predominant issues.

Wood Boom Heard.

Here and there, through 1915, the suggestion made itself heard that if the opposition to Wilson desired a candidate on whom the Progressives and the Republicans would unite they could not do better than choose Leonard Wood. Wood did not take these intimations too seriously. But in January, 1916, they began to take substance and shape. John A. Stewart, a New York man of affairs who wielded a certain somewhat mysterious influence behind the screen in the Republican temple, told Wood that he thought he could make him the Republican nominee.

"That," answered Wood dryly, "seems to me a pretty large order."

Stewart admitted it; but he was an optimist. What logic there was, moreover, in the most illogical of arts, was in Wood's favor. He was widely known; he had a distinguished record; circumstances, moreover, had kept him, like Hughes, out of the bitter struggle of 1912; he was the father of the preparedness movement; he was, moreover, Roosevelt's close friend, who could if nominated count on Roosevelt's support.

Wood was unquestionably stirred, hearing the bees humming. But he remained skeptical. He recognized Roosevelt as the logical candidate, and insisted that whatever Stewart undertook, he should under no circumstances do anything to interfere with Roosevelt's chances.

History Made in March, 1916.

On the last day of March, 1916, occurred an event which made history.

"Lunch with Robert Bacon, Roosevelt, Root, Lodge and I. First meeting for years. All passed off well. Roosevelt and Root seemed to be glad to be together again, really so. Roosevelt cussed out Wilson as did Root and Lodge. Opinion that the country never so low in standing before. Much talk about Mexico, what they would have done had they been in power. * * * Roosevelt said to me in the presence of Root that he would be for me in case things went right; a quiet way of letting what he would do be known. Were there about three hours."

The meeting created a sensation. The reconciliation of Roosevelt with Root, who more than any other had been responsible for his failure to secure the Republican nomination in 1912, completely altered the political situation, foreshadowed the reunion of the Progressives and the Republicans and placed Roosevelt instantly in the forefront of the contenders for the Republican nomination. The Democrats were agitated, remembering that they had won in 1912 only because the Republican had been divided.

Wood's presence at the luncheon which had laid the foundations for a united campaign against the Democrats, not unnaturally angered the administration. "I told you so," said one Democrat to another. "Official Washington," it was said, was "amazed." The administration had long suspected that Wood's propaganda for training camps was merely a blind for the organization of young voters interested in preparedness. Now the cat was out of the bag. If ever there was "pernicious political activity," here it was. The commanding officer of the great Department of the East was making an "eyesore" of American military discipline. Roosevelt's suggestion of Wood as a possible candidate deepened the resentment.

Comic Note Evident.

What was to be done? There was something comic in the way in which the administration, facing this personal issue, ran true to form. It was all quite like a note to Germany, as it was reported by its faithful trumpeter, David Lawrence, in the New York Evening Post; the admirable analysis of the situation, the catalog of "flagrant" violations of the regulations forbidding public speeches "on the military situation of the United States." Wood's frequent absences from his headquarters, his political activity; ending with an appeal to the world to note how deep were these offenses, and how long was the official patience. Did such a shocking person not deserve a reprimand? But here was the rub. A reprimand would be seized by the horrid Republicans as proof that the administration was against preparedness. Wood would be proclaimed a martyr to the cause and his political stock would go soaring. The customary veiled threat was not lacking. There was a suggestion of "a transfer to some other and more soldierlike department of the Army where the military abilities of Gen. Wood can be of some service to the Government that pays him $8,000 a year for military duty and not for political campaigning." Meanwhile the administration crowned its meditation upon Gen. Wood as it crowned its epistles to Mexico and Germany by doing nothing.

How seriously Wood himself took the prospect of the nomination his own supporters did not know. When Col. Kilbourne, his chief of staff, spoke to him about the possibilities, Wood lifted his hand in protest. "Don't mention the Presidency to me," he said sharply. "I've got a big job on my hands and I can't afford to be thinking of anything else." His very vehemence indicated that the political sirens were calling.

HOW IT BEGAN

By Russ Murphy and Roy Sercombe

GARRISON FINISH

IN THE FAMOUS SUBURBAN HORSE RACE IN 1882, "SNAPPER" GARRISON, THE GREATEST JOCKEY OF HIS DAY, BROUGHT HIS HORSE MONTANA FROM BEHIND TO WIN BY A NOSE. THE NEWSPAPER PUBLICITY WHICH FOLLOWED THE RACE GAVE US THE PHRASE "GARRISON FINISH" TO APPLY TO CLOSELY CONTESTED EVENTS—WON OR LOST BY AN EYELASH.

ARMED TO THE TEETH

THE BOLD BUCCANEERS OF BY-GONE DAYS WENT TO THEIR JOB OF PLUNDERING WITH A CUTLASS IN THEIR BELT, PISTOLS IN THEIR HANDS AND A DAGGER IN THEIR TEETH. THAT MADE THEM LOOK FORMIDABLE AND COWED THEIR OPPONENTS. IT ALSO GAVE US THIS EXPRESSION.

PADDLE YOUR OWN CANOE

THE LIGHT INDIAN BIRCH CANOES HELD ONLY ONE PERSON. THE OCCUPANT THEREFORE HAD TO PADDLE HIS OWN CANOE. IN THE LATE SEVENTIES A SONG EMBODYING THIS IDEA HELPED TO POPULARIZE THE EXPRESSION BOTH IN ENGLAND AND AMERICA.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

LEE RILEY, who hopped all the way from Montreal to Washington in advance of the New York Grand Opera Company scheduled for the National Theater next week, can not speak above a whisper. With 100 magnificent voices to boast of, shouting the talents of these people has cost Mr. Riley his own means of vocal expression—which goes to show what a hard time a press agent has these days.

* * * *

At the same time, Mr. Arch McGovern, who comes in advance of the great dancing show, "Blackbirds of 1930," is hobbling about on sore feet, hardly able to walk. He attributes his affliction to press agentry, too. Everywhere he goes, in advance of the show, the house managers make him attempt to furnish samples of dancing done by the Berry Brothers—two of the latest finds in musical comedy. It seems that the Berry Boys, one tall and the other short, are the dancing sensation of the year—and that even Bill Robinson, whose work is well known in this city, is quite a hopeless paralytic when compared with the Berrys. "Yes," admits Mr. McGovern, "they are the berries."

* * * *

'Twill be quite the occasion of song and dance, next week, what with the New York Grand Opera Company, at the National, "The Blackbirds of 1930" at the Belasco, and Roxy and His Gang at Constitution Hall. Roxy will be here for two performances only—matinee and night, Thursday, February 5—under the auspices of the Gray Ladies of Walter Reed. Whatever funds are garnered from this engagement will be turned over to a fund for the completion of a chapel at Walter Reed Hospital.

* * * *

In these days when half houses are considered good houses in the American theater, Miss Ruth Draper yesterday played to capacity at the Belasco Theater, the last row of seats on the main floor filled. This seems to be the answer: When the theater has something worth while there are always those who can find time and money for such entertainment. With only three more performances to go, Miss Draper is very likely to set a new box office record at the Lafayette Square playhouse—for straight dramatic fare.

* * * *

Some three seasons have gone by and not a single revival of Gilbert and Sullivan. To make up for this lost time, the Shuberts announced yesterday that they are going to organize a repertory company to present a number of these celebrated old pieces—notably "Pinafore," "The Mikado," and "Iolanthe"—and that the Belasco Theater, which housed the Winthrop Ames productions, will be the scene of the first presentations. This should be the signal for great glee among the theatergoers, lovers of the Savoyard operettas.

* * * *

Next Tuesday evening—according to reports from Broadway—the little old town of New York will be startled by a piece of drama which had its beginnings here. This is the hotsy-totsy bit of farce known as "In the Best of Families," the play that almost set the Belasco Theater on fire just before the arrival of Miss Ruth Draper, with her original character sketches.

* * * *

Katherine Cornell, last seen here in "Dishonored Lady," now has her new play well in hand and will launch forth on Broadway next week with "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," a play done by the English playwright, Rudolph Besier, and fashioned from the lives of the poets—Robert and Elizabeth Browning.

* * * *

"America's Sweetheart," on the way to New York, is a complete sell-out in Washington—which means that only a few seats remain at the National for those who want to see the latest take-off on Hollywood, accompanied by music.

Auxiliary Plans Program.

"The Quest of the Holy Grail," by Miss Alice Hutchins Drake, will be presented for the benefit of the St. Margaret's Auxiliary on February 9 at 8:30 o'clock at St. Margaret's Parish House. A program of music will be given by the choir invisible, under direction of A. H. Galt. There will be a solo by Mrs. C. C. McDonnell, followed by Gounod's "Sanctus," by the Flora McGill Keefer quartet.

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood (A.P.).—Film executives have been noticing a slightly hollow sound lately in the boom-boom of the big world premiere openings at the larger Hollywood and Los Angeles theaters, and it begins to look probable that these fantastic ceremonies will be abandoned.

GEORGE O'BRIEN

Customers in large and enthusiastic numbers are declining to pay $5 per copy for the privilege of sitting through a performance which can be seen the following night for $1.50. Six days before the world premiere of a recent "big" picture, seventeen admissions had been sold by the theater which has a 2,000-seat capacity.

Bashful.

Many stars, too—believe it or not—don't like to dress up and be stared at, and as many stars are to be seen on second nights as on first nights. They want to see the pictures early in their runs, but they want also to avoid the mobs.

However, there is scarcely ever a vacant seat at an opening. Many's the stenographer and fourth assistant script clerk who holds her best evening raiment in readiness for opening nights, in the hope that she will be asked to accept (free) what otherwise would be an unoccupied seat.

Many of the stars found at premieres go on an "I'll attend your premiere, and you attend mine" basis.

Very incidentally, Clara Bow, whom you've been seeing things in the papers about, possibly has caused as many millions of dollars to clink through box office windows as any other star, but she never has had a starring picture given the honor of a $5 opening. She had almost a minor role in "Wings," the one premiered picture in which she appeared.

Living His Roles.

George O'Brien, he-man screen hero with 46-inch chest, got the best of two thugs after they had knocked him down and kicked him.

When he went home to tell his father, Daniel J. O'Brien, one-time San Francisco police chief, George expected to get a little sympathy and maybe a pat on the back. His father's only comment was:

"You'll be a copper yet."

Extra boys and girls who work after midnight are transported from the studios to their homes in big buses. The reason is that most of the cinema city passenger buses and street cars cease operations at the witching hour.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

Rewarding Naughtiness.

When you say to your child, if you stop crying I will buy you an ice cream cone," you are in reality paying him for being naughty.

It will not take him long to discover that it was because he cried that he received the treat. Soon he will cry whenever he wants an ice cream cone, or anything else. He has learned that by making a nuisance of himself he can demand payment for being good.

This, of course, is the very opposite of the way in which rewards should be used.

Do not say, for instance, "I will give you a penny for every morning you are down for breakfast by 8 o'clock." This will make the child feel that he should be paid for performing a mere duty.

But if you say, "When you come downstairs promptly for breakfast you save me a good deal of time, so that I can take you to the zoo," you have made him see the reward in its proper light as a recognition of achievement.

Money rewards are dangerous in any case. They provide a definite material compensation for desirable conduct which should be valued in entirely different terms.

If you start paying your child a penny for every perfect spelling paper he brings home from school, you will find that the cost of perfect spelling papers is bound to go up.

Before long you will be paying a nickel and then a dime for them, when the mere satisfaction of having made a perfect record should be a sufficient reward.

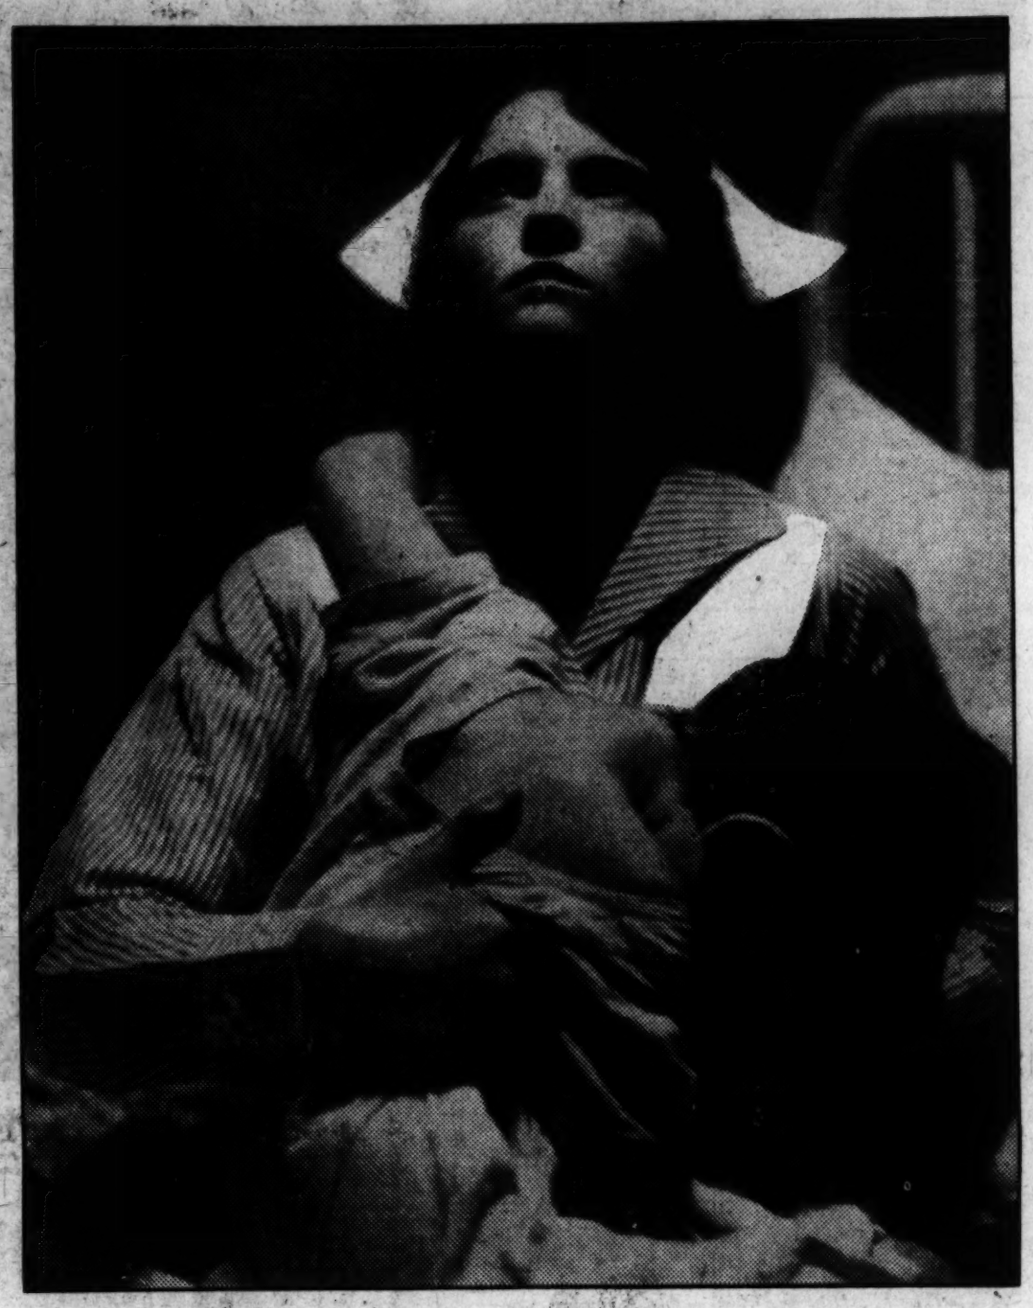
We need You more than ever this year

FOR WASHINGTON'S SAKE · GIVE · COMMUNITY CHEST

A large portion of last year's fund was spent for family and home service. Because of unemployment and resulting conditions, the demands this year will be greater.



Washington must raise $1,950,154.40 between January 26th and February 4th. Thousands of Washington families will require help from established Community Fund Agencies this year that did not need this aid last year. Measure your contribution by this need.

Visiting nurses made thousands of visits in Washington last year. Their burden will be heavier this year. Send your dollars with them, that their heroic work may go on.

A large percentage of the Community Chest Dollar is spent for the care of children. In the coming year more children must be sheltered, fed and clothed. Surely you will not deny them their chance in life.

If the Community Chest fund should fail, many helpless old people will find the doors of the institutions closed to them.

In this 1931 campaign for 1931, your Community Chest through larger gifts and more gifts must raise $388,000 or 25% more for 1931 than was actually raised for 1930 for 62 local Charities and the American Red Cross Drought Relief.

UNEMPLOYMENT—

Washington's charitable organizations have the heaviest burden of unemployment relief in the history of our city. More heads of families are out of work than ever before. There are more families with exhausted resources; more with broken morale.

More people are sick from privation.

There are more people than ever in our city's history unable to pay all or part of the cost of hospital and nursing care.

There are more broken families and more children applying for admission to orphan asylums.

There are more people crowding into character-building organizations for wholesome use of unemployed time.

GROWTH OF CITY—

Washington's steady growth means a steady increase in the number of persons needing the help of charitable and philanthropic organizations.

IMPROVED SERVICE FOR NEEDY—

The health survey and the family survey, recently completed, recommended improvements in quantity and quality of service by member organizations. These improvements are vitally necessary for the well-being of our fellow citizens. We can't do much improving in this hard year, but we must do what we can!

YEAR-'ROUND OPERATION OF FORMER PART-TIME ORGANIZATIONS—

The Children's Country Home, the Bureau of Rehabilitation and the Child Guidance Clinic ran for only part of last year, but will be operated for all of 1931. The Episcopal Home for Children went into new and improved quarters on January 1, with 50 per cent increased capacity. The people of our city need this year-'round increased service. We must finance it!

GIFTS TO BE MADE UP—

$100,000 of the Reserve Fund and the $50,000 gift from the Inaugural Committee, originally intended for the Reserve Fund, were added to the regular subscriptions of 1930 to meet the need created by unemployment. This additional sum of $150,000 is necessary merely to stay even with last year's appropriations to member organizations.

Several wealthy contributors have died. Others have left the city. Many who gave last year are now out of work and need aid themselves.

Those who can give more in this human emergency must do so! GIVE MORE—THE NEED IS GREATER.

AMERICAN RED CROSS DROUGHT RELIEF—

In order to prevent interference with the Washington Chapter of the American Red Cross in raising its $100,000 quota of the Nation-wide $10,000,000 drought Relief Fund and in order also to save time of volunteers and cost of duplicate solicitation, the Community Chest has included the $100,000 for this fund in its budget. This amount must be raised in addition to the sum of $1,850,154.40 required by the Community Chest for local needs. Do your share for local and national emergency by giving one gift to your Community Chest.

Oh that you could see in the flesh these thousands to whom the Community Chest Fund must minister . . . orphaned children . . . crippled babies, the sick and aged, the worthy destitute. Your heart and your purse should open to them. But these few pictures must speak for them all. Cold figures must tell how grave is Washington's emergency. Cost what it may, in work and sacrifice, this campaign must not fail. The burden belongs to all of us who have jobs . . . and health . . . and hope. Will you bear your share? Give much if you can . . . give little if you must . . . BUT GIVE. WE NEED YOU MORE THAN EVER THIS YEAR.

JANUARY 30, 1906.

Senator Patterson, of Colorado, created a tremendous sensation in the Senate by espousing the cause of President Roosevelt more enthusiastically than had ever been done by the most earnest and vigilant supporters of the President in his own party.

Speaker Cannon was presented with a pair of homespun "galluses" by an admirer from North Carolina and the Speaker declared that they were to be saved for posterity.

The Capital Traction Co. presented its annual report to Congress, showing receipts for the past year, from District of Columbia passengers, to be $1,606,971.61. The number of injured on the lines during the past year was said to be 403 persons, with 3 deaths.

Many cases of pneumonia fever were being reported to District health authorities and four persons were declared to have died from the disease within the past week.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

DISEASES FROM GAME.

THE open season for game is at hand and there is certain to be an increase in tularemia in consequence. Most diseases which prevail in epidemics among lower animals are prone to limit themselves to those domesticated animals that live under artificial conditions which man imposes. Tularemia is the one outstanding American exception.

It prevails among wild rabbits of different species in all parts of the country, and there is evidence that it also prevails among deer, opossums, muskrats, woodchucks, mice, sheep, and quail to some extent; and may infect, though in an irregular way, coyotes, ground squirrels, and cats On the other hand, domesticated rabbits escape. There is some evidence that when wild abbits are found dead in large numbers, as has been observed more than once, the cause is tularemia. The chief danger to man lies in skinning and butchering the infected animals. Laboratory workers, butchers, cooks, and hunters are about the only classes who are greatly endangered.

Eating the meat of a diseased animal is not pleasant to contemplate, but so far as we know is not a dangerous proceeding. However, men are infected by the bites of many insects, such as deer flies and ticks, and still others. And now, confining ourselves to the perils of human life:

A man who has been infected is generally taken sick on the fourth day after exposure. The disease begins with a chill, with great aching, including headache, and followed by fever. He notices that the glands of a given location are swollen and painful. Observing more closely, he may note a wound on a finger and red streaks running from this wound to the enlarged glands.

Probably this will be the first notice he has taken of the wound. Becoming suspicious, he remembers skinning some rabbits three or four days earlier and he may remember a scratch on a finger as having been an incident of the skinning operation. If there is need for any help in diagnosing a laboratory makes an agglutination test and settles all doubt.

As a rule, the illness lasts three weeks and is followed by a slow convalescence and recovery. No isolation is required by law, though reporting to the health department is necessary. There is no treatment except meeting symptoms as they arise. Lancing the enlarged glands is apt to do harm. The blood of a person who has had tularemia will give a positive laboratory test for the remainder of life. This suggests that blood serum from persons who have had tularemia should cure the disease.

MILLER, INGRAM'S AID, IS NAMED NAVY GRID COACH

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Always credulous and optimistic, I could be deceived very easily by a band of heavyweight wrestlers if they wished to take advantage of my trusting nature, but, regardless of their sincerity, the boys who are operating in New York just now are far more lively and amusing than the heavyweight prize fighters, more modest in their demands and more eager to please the customers.

It really does not matter much who is champion, anyway, a fact which the customers are unwilling to admit as to pugilism, although in wrestling they are quite willing to divide the title three ways.

There are three heavyweight wrestlers in the United States alone who claim to be the heavyweight champion. Each has his own territorial rights. Jim Londos is champion in New York and vicinity, Ed Don George, the football player, is champion of a large practice elsewhere, and John Pesek, of Nebraska, seems to be the heavyweight champion of the world in Columbus, Ohio; Cincinnati and in certain counties in West Virginia.

TRIO CLAIM WORLD'S TITLE

Each in his own jurisdiction appears to enjoy the confidence of the patrons, who are quite aware of the claims of the others, but they seldom muscle into a rival's zone of operations, and consequently there is no such bickering and calling of names as always go on in pugilism. And above all these champions, including his own man, Mr. Londos, Jack Curley, the headman of the New York territory, rates a number of privately owned heavyweights belonging to various sporting princes of India.

The earnest desire of the wrestlers to entertain the patrons is a rebuke to the cultivated indifference of the heavyweight pugilists. They heave one another in long, spinning flights to three-point landings in the aisles, compared with which the most spectacular loops ever performed by Fainting Philip Scott are but the primary movements of the game of squat-tag; they squeal, they whinney and utter other strange animal cries which naturally suggest that a group of wrestlers should be called a herd, and when one heavyweight starts knocking another one's skull upon the floor like a baboon banging a cocoanut on a rock, the patrons understand that, whatever else may be said of all this, it is entertainment.

Whether the wrestling is good or is only make-believe is a question which the patrons, having long forgotten all they ever knew of the game, if anything, have not troubled themselves to inquire. It is comparatively simple to detect the fraud when one prize fighter subsides before another without due cause. The things that one prize fighter can do to another with two fists are few, and the boys do these few things with such languid deliberation that the patrons have become good judges of cause and effect. There is not much fakery in heavyweight prize fighting now with Primo Carnera temporarily withdrawn to the drama. They have to enter the ring, at least, to exercise a phoney, and the last place to look for a heavyweight fighter of any prominence is in the ring.

GRAPPLERS' RANGE IS LARGE

The wrestlers, however, have a much larger range of art. The customers have a hazy idea that if one wrestler does something to another one in a certain way, that is called a half-Nelson; that if he throws him past the fifteenth row it is called a flying mare. But that is about all and this ignorance is rather a comfort than an inconvenience. When the bout is over and the boy at the newstand up the block asks the customer: "What did he throw him with?" the customer can't answer in a word but has to reply, "Well, I tell you: first he grabbed him around here like this and then he did like this——" If it was a fake, the customer has no way of knowing that it was, and he goes his way believing that he had a very

Ryerson and Berry In Miami Golf Finals

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—J. B. Ryerson, of Cooperstown, N. Y., and Kenneth Berry, of Miami, went into the finals of the Miami Beach men's amateur golf championship by winning their semifinal matches today from "Pony" McAtee, Jamaica, Long Island, and Win Day, Chicago, respectively.

Ryerson defeated McAtee 5 and 4 when the Jamaica golfer and jockey lost control of his putter. Berry upset Day to win 2 up, the Miamian sinking a 20-foot putt on the eighteenth green to climax the match.

Eastern Bids For Big Lead In Series

Elimination Is Faced by Champions If Defeated.

THE Eastern High School five, which entered the scholastic championship series a cofavorite with the title-defending Tech Team, has a chance today to gain something of a commanding lead in the annual race. The Lincoln Parkers, who share with Business the distinction of having won three games in this hectic series, meet Western in the second half of a double-header at Tech this afternoon. Central and Tech are scheduled to open the program.

The record of Eastern is typical of the series this year. Coach Guyon's charges opened the race with a 27-23 victory over Tech and followed up that success with a 32-26 triumph over Western. At that stage of the struggle, Eastern seemed destined to coast to the title., However, Business and Central, thought to be outclassed by Noonan, Leib & Co., upset Eastern. Whether or not the Lincoln Parkers will let another good chance slip through their fingers remains to be seen.

Western Fights to Stay in Race.

One thing is certain, if there is anything certain in this Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde series, and that is that Western will be a fighting team today. Like Tech in the Central game, the Red and White virtually is faced with the necessity of winning to stay in the race. Defeat would mean the fourth for Western and would reduce its title chances to the possibility of another five-way tie.

The same situation exists in Tech's case. A Central victory means practical elimination for the Manual Trainers. With this game involving the keenest of the high school rivalries, plus the fact that Tech won the first game by a 26-25 margin, the stands are sure to be crowded before the 3:45 starting time.

Tech May Discard Zone Defense.

It is expected that Tech will discard its zone defense for this contest. Central, directed by Coach Coggins, has exhibited its ability to outmaneuver that style and it was only after Tech switched to the man-for-man system in the first clash that the Manual Trainers were able to go to the front.

Central has improved greatly since the first part of the series, showing splashes of form in its 39-31 victory over Eastern that would have been a credit to Earle Moser, Mickey Macdonald and the other former Central stars at their best.

Eastern Uses Reserves In Routing Emerson

Holding their guests to one field goal and one foul shot in the first half, Eastern High School cagers overwhelmed Emerson Institute, 39 to 15, yesterday afternoon in the Eastern Gym.

In order to save his first-stringers for the series game today with Western, Coach Guyon, of Eastern inserted his second team midway in the second quarter and allowed it to finish the contest. These substitutes held the Prepmen on even terms the rest of the route.

Spriggs Named Coach Of Columbus U. Five

Robert R. Spriggs, former Western Maryland star, has been appointed head coach of basket ball at Columbus University by Raymond J. Walters, director of athletics at the Massachusetts avenue school, announced yesterday. Spriggs will succeed Tommy Connors who has been acting as player-coach since the start of the season.

Columbus meets the Bliss Electrical School Team tonight in the concluding game of the first round series in the Washington Intercollegiate Conference League. The battle will be staged at the Silver Spring Armory at 9 o'clock.

Preceding it will be a contest between the Eagle Girls sextet, of Washington, and the Hampden Girls, of Baltimore, at 8 p. m.

By winning tonight, Columbus can clinch second place in the standings for the first half. Second round play in the league will begin next Tuesday with Columbus playing Southeastern.

Statistics Reveal Play of Leading Golf Professionals Unaffected by Change in Ball

Old Man Par Is Being Chased to Cover by Good Players.

By PAUL MICKELSON.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The newer and bigger golf ball so far has failed to stop the par-breaking habits of America's leading professionals.

Tabulations compiled by the Professional Golfers' Association of America for the first series of winter tournament skirmishes today revealed that the new ball has been touring difficult courses with approximately the same number of strokes as a year ago.

"So far it has been the same old story," said Albert R. Gates, administrator of the association. "The good players continue to chase old man par to cover as before and the scores are as low as they were when the smaller ball was in use."

Cooper Has Best Average.

"Lighthorse Harry" Cooper, pint-size Chicago professional, so far has turned in the best average per round, the tabulations showed. In twenty eighteen-hole rounds, Cooper averaged 72.4 stroke, better golf than he played during his comeback campaign a year ago. Right behind him came Tommy Armour, of Detroit, professional golfers champion, with a 72.5 average for ten rounds. Leo Diegel, of Agua Caliente, Mexico, ranked third on the list of players, playing ten or more rounds, with an average of 72.6, while Gene Sarazen, of New York, was fourth with 72.7 for seventeen rounds. Diegel's record was for fifteen rounds.

George Von Elm, who tied Johnny Golden for first place money in the $25,000 Agua Caliente open, ranked last on the list of leaders, strangely enough, with an average of 74 strikes for nineteen rounds. Golden didn't even stand among the leaders. Ed Dudley, winner of the Los Angeles open with the fine score of 285 strokes, ranked fourteenth with 73.7.

Stars Are Closely Bunched.

Only 1.6 points separated Cooper and Von Elm, first and last place leaders, so close was the grading, however.

The rankings for the first sixteen:

	Rounds	Aver.
Harry Cooper, Chicago	20	72.4

Editor Says Prohibition Is Damned at 19th Hole

New York, Jan. 29 (N.Y.W.N.S.). The prevalent practice of American golfers, men and women, old and young, of summarizing and debating their games in the locker rooms of the country clubs with the aid of alcoholic stimulants is having "an especially bad effect," Stanley High, editor of the Christian Herald, told members of the New York women's committee for law enforcement.

"A real problem of prohibition is in the locker rooms of the country clubs," Mr. High informed the women, who met at the home of Mrs. Harold A. Hatch here. "In no other place is prohibition more enthusiastically damned than in the locker rooms after a round of golf. And the effect is especially bad on the young people."

Fish Demands Army Grid Probe

War Department Is Asked to Investigate Recruiting Charge.

((Associated Press.))

AN investigation of charges that West Point Military Academy authorities permit proselyting of football players has been demanded of the War Department by Representative Fish.

Gen. Douglas McArthur, chief of staff of the War Department, said he would refer the charges to West Point for investigation.

The New York Republican asked an investigation of the activities of W. T. Wrightson, a member of the Army Athletic Association, and Paul Carroll, a cadet, in connection with alleged efforts to induce Kenneth Goff, star Rhode Island State football player, to enter the academy.

Fish charged in a statement made public today that Wrightson "has been caught redhanded in collaboration with Cadet Carroll, football manager-elect (at West Point) in trying to secure an appointment for Goff, who was the second highest scorer in the East this year."

The New Yorker said he had also requested an inquiry into the activities of Coach Sasse at West Point. He asserted that Carroll and Wrightson had attempted to obtain an appointment for Goff to West Point from a Massachusetts district in which he did not live.

Goff is from Brocton, Mass., but Fish said, efforts were made to get him an appointment from Worcester, but Representative Stobbs (Republican), upon learning that the boy was not from his district, declined to make the appointment.

Fish also asked that Wrightson's name be stricken from the rolls of the Army Athletic Association.

Charges Denied by West Point.

War Department officials said the charges had been denied by Maj. Philip B. Fleming, athletic director at the academy, on the ground that Carroll had acted personally in correspondence with Goff.

Fish said the Providence Evening Bulletin had published letters detailing efforts "of football authorities at West Point to secure star college players." He added, the newspaper "has rendered a valuable service to amateur football and verified the statement that I have made repeatedly in the last three years that star college players are encouraged and solicited to enter West Point."

Wrightson Sent Three Letters to Fish.

The New York representative said he had three letters from Wrightson protesting Representative Fish's former attack on football tactics at West Point.

"As long as these practices continue at West Point," Fish said, "I hope newspapers will continue to expose them and that sooner or later Harvard and Yale will wake up to the situation and sever football relations with West Point."

Among other dogs to be entered is Procter Major Rex, pointer, owned by Dr. Walton H. Hopkins, of Annapolis, Md. Rex is considered a strong contender. Dogs eligible to enter the championship contest must have qualified by winning a place in an all-age stake of a recognized club which holds a membership in the national association. There is an abundance of game, especially birds, on former Camp Lee, and field trials heretofore held there have been most successful.

Blue Ridge League Future Is Jeopardized

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Jan. 29.—The future of the Blue Ridge League, pioneer member of class D baseball, will be decided at a meeting which has been set tentatively for Tuesday, February 10, it was announced today by J. Vincent Jamison, jr., president.

At the annual league meeting it was decided not to continue operations unless two new clubs were secured, making the league a six-club affair, and President Jamison was instructed to take the matter up with the majors to see what help any of their members not already interested in the Blue Ridge were willing to furnish. This he will do next week at New York, when the majors and minors meet to work out the details and ratify the unrestricted draft proposal, which has been agreed upon by both parties. Big league clubs owning franchises in the league last year were the St. Louis Cardinals, Cleveland and the New York Yankees, while Washington helped out the fourth club.

CUT IS NOTED IN GRIDIRON PLANS

By FOSTER HAILEY.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The seed of moderation, sown in football fields by coaches and graduate managers at their annual powwow in New York City during the Christmas holidays, is already bearing fruit in elimination or reduction of spring practice at many of the leading Eastern colleges and universities.

Thirty-three colleges today were asked by the Associated Press as to their plans for spring practice. Thirteen are to continue the practice, although on a curtailed scale at some place. Eleven plan no spring practice. Nine, including the big three—Harvard, Yale, and Princeton—have come to no definite decision. Indications are, however, that the big three and probably several others on the "undecided" list will not call out a football squad this spring.

The list of those that will continue spring practice includes the Naval Academy, Rutgers, Dartmouth, Cornell, Syracuse, Colgate, Pittsburgh, Washington and Jefferson, Duquesne, Penn State, Bucknell, and Temple. Temple, however, will have only one week of drill and the program will be short at several other places.

West Point Among Negative Group.

The Military Academy, University of Delaware, Rider College, at Trenton, N. J.; Haverford, Swarthmore, the University of Maryland, Pennsylvania Military, Alleghany, Carnegie Tech, Geneva, and Lafayette will issue no football equipment until next September. It's going to be a strictly "fall sport" at those institutions.

The old big three, as well as Columbia, New York University, Fordham, Brown, West Virginia, and the University of Pennsylvania have made no decision one way or the other as yet.

The very fact that no spring practice has been announced at those nine institutions gives an indication as to which way the wind is blowing.

Harvard Will Make Decision Monday.

Harvard is to make a definite decision on the matter Monday, with the expectation spring drill will be called off. Yale will act at the board of control meeting February 9, and Columbia and New York University early next month.

Pony McAtee and Day Bow in Florida Golf

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Jack Ryerson, Cooperstown, N. Y., fairways expert, shunted Linus "Pony" McAtee, nationally known jockey and an amateur golfer, into the ranks of also rans today by a 5 and 4 count in semifinals of the Miami Beach men's amateur championship.

Win Day, youthful Chicago sensation, who has won one 1931 Miami crown, joined McAtee in defeat, losing 2 up to Kenneth Berry, of Miami, dark horse in the tournament. Berry and Ryerson will meet in 36-hole finals tomorrow.

Shute and Young Lead Texas Open Preliminary

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 29 (A.P.). Denny Shute, young Columbus, Ohio, professional, and Lorraine Young, 20-year-old San Antonio amateur, combined their talents today to score a 65, six under par and place first in the amateur-pro event, preliminary to the $6,500 Texas open tomorrow.

Roy Spencer Accepts Nats' 1931 Contract

Amicable settlement of their contract difficulties was effected yesterday by Catcher Roy Spencer and President Clark C. Griffith of the Nats when Spencer accepted terms for 1930 after two days of negotiating.

In signing for his third season with the Nats, Spencer, who last year ousted Muddy Ruel from the regular catching berth, drew a sharp contrast to his taciturn in 1930 when he refused to sign throughout the training season and did not go South with the team, finally accepting terms on the opening day of the season.

Rockne Pupil Promoted at Annapolis

Official Appointment Is Due; Success in 1930 "Fair."

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 29 (A.P.). Edgar E. (Rip) Miller, all-American guard at Notre Dame in 1924, and line coach at the Naval Academy for the last five years, will succeed "Navy Bill" Ingram as head football coach, it was learned at the Academy today.

Miller has been a member of the coaching staff at the Academy since 1926 when Ingram first took over the grid reins and turned out an undefeated team. He came to the Academy fresh from the Notre Dame outfit which made history in the football world, being one of the line "mules" who made possible the record of the "four horsemen" of that year.

Naval Academy athletic officials would neither confirm nor deny that Miller had been selected for the vacancy created when Ingram signed a contract to become head coach at the University of California, but did say he would return to the Academy as a coach.

High Official Confirms Appointment.

A high athletic official said, however, that Miller had been agreed on, but that the formal announcement of the appointment would not be made for several days.

Miller was mentioned for head coach as soon as it was rumored that Ingram would not return, and the Navy authorities were quick to make it known that Miller had signed to return to the Middies. They would not at that time confirm the statement that the former Notre Dame star would succeed Ingram.

Bob Bierman, coach at Tulane University, was among those under consideration for the Navy post. Had Miller not been selected overtures from Ingram and the California authorities to have him coach the Bears' line were expected.

Middies Won Six, Lost Four Last Season.

Ingram and Miller had only fair success with the Middies last season, winning six games and losing four. The close post-season New York charity game with the Army, which the underdog Middies lost by a single touchdown, was considered a redeeming feature, however.

Yates to Face Stover In Palm Beach Finals

Palm Beach, Fla., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Arthur "Ducky" Yates, of Rochester, N. Y., the old master of Palm Beach golfers, struck his tournament stride in the semifinals of the annual Lake Worth championship today and defeated Tommy Goodwin, 17-year-old Monroe, N. Y., boy, 5 and 4.

Goodwin offered a stiff battle turning in a 72, three over par, but was no match for the veteran Yates, who clipped one stroke off par on each nine.

In the other semifinals match, A. L. Stover, of Windsor, Ont., was forced to three extra holes before eliminating Leon Sikes, of West Palm Beach.

Berg Heavy Favorite Over Perlick Tonight

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Jackie (Kid) Berg, crack British lightweight, tackles Herman Perlick, from Kalamazoo, Mich., for the third time tomorrow night in the feature attraction at Madison Square Garden. Twice before, Berg has thrown the better half of a pair of fighting twins for a loss.

Middleburg Hunt Trials Scheduled for Feb. 23

BOXING, BASKET BALL ON MARYLAND U. WEEK-END

V.M.I.'s Five To Invade Tonight

Whipp's Boxers Make Debut Tomorrow Against W. & L.

Bouts to Be Followed by Basket Ball With V. P. I.

MARYLAND UNIVERSITY enters a busy week-end in sport tonight when its basket ball team meets Virginia Military Institute in Ritchie Gymnasium at 8 o'clock. Tomorrow night the Old Line sends its quintet against Virginia Poly and its newly organized boxing team against Washington and Lee in a gala twin bill calculated to attract a capacity crowd.

Chief interest centers on the boxing match in which the Terrapins, under Coach Billy Whipp, will get their initial taste of intercollegiate competition. Coach Whipp is optimistic over the outcome and this feeling pervades the student body, at whose insistence, for one reason, the university authorities agreed to establish boxing on the regular sports curriculum.

Whipp Tutored Squad For Two Years.

Whipp really has had most of his men two years, as he had many of the present squad under his tutelage when boxing was carried as intramural venture last year. Practically all of the men who will box the Generals have been with him both years.

He feels that Bernard Keener should win in the welter class and that Francis Holloway, his heavy; Karl Mech, his middleweight, and Jimmy Decker, his featherweight, have an even chance or better of coming through with victories.

Robinson	Bantam	Lake
Schlossburg	Feather	Decker
Srulowitz	Light	Iseman
McKenny	Welter	Keener
Pound	Middle	Mech
Bacon	Light-heavy	Robbins
Collins	Heavy	Holloway

The bouts will begin at 8 o'clock tomorrow night, instead of at 9:15, as previously advertised. The basket ball game will follow, starting at 9:30. Heine Miller, well known referee, will be the third man in the ring.

Maryland expects to win tonight's match, though examinations have seriously hampered practice during the past wek. Earlier in the season the Terrapins downed V. M. I. at Lexington.

Skinker Eagles Play Kansas Five Sunday

The Skinker Eagles, undefeated for the season, will face what is expected to be a stern test Sunday afternoon when the Kansas Tornadoes, who claim the State championship of Kansas, invade the Silver Spring Armory. The Westerners have a record of 20 victories in 23 starts this season. The preliminary will bring the Stewart Brothers Photographers and the East Arlington Club of Baltimore, together again. The last encounter ended in an argument.

Ben Franklin Battles "Y" at Tech Tonight

The Ben Franklin U. five, leading the Washington Conference, will meet the Y. M. C. A. team tonight at Tech High gymnasium, starting at 8 o'clock. In a preliminary game, the Montrose team will meet some 145-pound club. Any teams interested are requested to call Manager George Pfeiffer at Cleveland 5575.

Three District League Contests for Tomorrow

Three District Amateur League games are booked for tomorrow night. At the Boys' Club, Potomac Boat Club and Boys' Club will clash at 7:30 o'clock and Saks, leading the circuit, will face the Eastern Preps at 8:30 o'clock. Dancing will follow the double-header. At the Y. M. C. A., the St. Martin's Five meets the Y. M. C. A., starting at 8 o'clock.

CHOICE WINS EASILY AT MIAMI

HIALEAH RACE TRACK, Miami, Fla., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Mrs. John Hay Whitney's crack 3-year-old gelding, Lighting Bolt, scored his third victory in as many starts in the Hillandale, the mile feature of today's card. He led Impish, Albazano, Silver Beauty and Dis Dame to the finish in impressive fashion to establish himself as the best horse of his age on the ground.

Lightning Bolt ran the mile in 1:40 1-5, with plenty in reserve and returned $3.50 for $2.

Charles Kurtsinger rode the Whitney colt and did a fine job. He followed Dis Dame into the back stretch, then shot Lightning Bolt into a scant lead, riding with a snug hold. Dis Dame did not last long, however, dropping out of contention when the field reached the stretch, where Impish moved up with a rush to supply the contention.

Lightning Bolt, given his head, drew out to three lengths and won by that margin, while Impish beat the fast-closing Albazano four lengths for the place.

Hamlet Pays $30.70 In Baby Race.

The Keeneland Stud's Hamlet, a fine looking 2-year-old son of Haste, scored in a drive over Don Red in the "baby" race of 2 furlongs. Prince Fox was third. Faireno, another field horse, fourth, and the favorite, Siberia.

The defeat of the favorite can be attributed to rough riding, which has been one of the prominent offenses of the jockeys. The winner paid $30.70.

A. C. Bostwick, Riding Own Horse, Is Winner

Sandown, England, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The American turfman, A. C. Bostwick, riding his own horse, Herewith, today won the Village Steeplechase over a 2-mile course. The victory was worth £200.

Herewith won by a neck from S. Wootton's Irish Lord, which beat Lord Lovat's Lounge Lizard for the place by two lengths.

The American entry was quoted at 6-1, 11-10, 3-1 in the wagering.

A. C. Bostwick is a brother of G. H. (Pete) Bostwick, also well known as a rider and polo player.

STOCKS UP SLIGHTLY AFTER EARLY DROPS

AMERICAN PHONE RISES

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—A lifeless stock market, which had watched further liquidation of United States Government securities during the earlier trading hours today, ambled out of its stupor in the late trading and on the strength of late short covering closed higher. The average net gain was small.

Apprehensions over a possible bonus bond issue seemed to gain force overnight and most of the liberties and treasuries broke a point or nearly a point. There was, however, a better tone in the group before the close, but the prevailing weakness of these highest grade obligations was reflected in rather sharp declines elsewhere in the bond list.

Short selling stocks in the morning found the market so inert that operators for the decline could make little headway and the creeping advance came after declines of about a point had been recorded in the leaders. The last hour was the day's most active period, but sales again approximated only 1,600,000 shares.

Group Movements Apparent.

Fairly well defined group movements were apparent. Merchandising shares were stimulated by the Montgomery Ward earnings statement which showed that in the final quarter of 1930 the mail order house had been able to cancel losses of previous months and show a small net income.

Farm implement shares rallied under the leadership of Case, Caterpillar Tractor and International Harvester. Utilities were stimulated by 2-point rallies in American Telephone and Consolidated Gas. Rails were dull, although New York Central and Atchison improved a couple of points in the late covering.

Among the active industrials, such shares as Anaconda, National Biscuit, Radio, Westinghouse, Woolworth, North American and American Smelting closed a point higher. Sears Roebuck gained 2¾ and Montgomery Ward, 1¾. United States Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Ward Baking Gains 7 Points.

General Electric and General Motors were up fractionally. Tobacco issues encountered profit-taking. The Ward Baking issues had a flurry, the A stock soaring 7 points, which was also the extent of Auburn's rise.

The Bethlehem Steel report, showing 17 cents a common share for the last quarter, of course, came too late for the market. As in the case of United States Steel, Wall street had been well prepared for the decline in earnings by the second largest unit in the industry, and the final returns were fully as good as expected. President Grace thought it reasonable to expect that the current quarter's earnings would be "approximately better."

The first advance in bill rates since last April was attributed to several causes. A larger supply of acceptances is available, coming largely from banks which may be nervous over the bonus prospects. It has pointed out, however, that last week's rise in London bill rates had attracted a considerable volume of American money to the English market and that today's rise of ½ here reduced the large spread.

Broker's Loans Decline.

Federal Reserve brokers' loans did the expected and declined. This time the drop was $23,000,000. In seventeen out of the past eighteen weeks these borrowings have fallen.

Strength in Winnipeg and bullish Oklahoma reports firmed wheat and the July future gained 2 cents. Corn was about 4 cent higher, reflecting an improved Eastern consumers' demand and firm Buenos Aires quotations. Cotton finished unchanged to 4 points higher.

Foreign exchanges were slightly easy. Both sterling cables and the French franc lost an eighth. The Bank of England's weekly condition statement revealed a loss of about £2,500,000 in gold, while French holdings increased.

U. S. GOVERNMENTS STAGE SLIGHT RALLY

Declines in Bonds, However, Are Extensive as Sales Pick Up Considerably.

INDEX SINKS HALF POINT

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Prices in the bond market today traveled in reverse at an accelerated pace under the leadership and influence of United States Governments, but the Governments made a partial recovery from the day's lows before the close.

After declining steadily for four days, buying support attracted by the appreciation in yields appeared in sufficient volume in the afternoon to push the price of many issues up from the lowest, but the net losses for the day were extensive. Both prime and second grade domestic corporate obligations moved lower in sympathy with Governments, erasing some of the improvement of the past month.

The standard statistics averages for 30 domestic bonds declined ½ of a point, which indicated a price level comparable with that prevailing in the first week of January, and the loss for two sessions amounted to a full point in the averages.

The continuance in Governments was a continuance of the movement that became marked in yesterday's session, although Treasury securities have declined from the start of the week. Traders attributed the selling to apprehension over the possibility the Government may float a large bond issue to finance cash redemption of soldiers' insurance certificates now before Congress.

Sharp declines in a larger turnover developed with extreme losses ranging from a full point to one-quarter. Attracted by the lower prices, however, banks became active in switching from banking acceptances to Governments, which had a steadying influence. Long-term Treasury issues, however, showed losses for the day ranging from 31-32ds in Treasury 4s to 9-32ds in Treasury 3¾s, of 1940-43. Liberty bonds sold off ⅛ from ¼ to ½.

Curb Review

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The curb market tilted upward in the last hour of trading today, after drifting uncertainly lower during much of the session. Final quotations were irregularly higher.

The curb market, following the example of the stock exchange, began reporting its sales in round figures. The total for the day was placed at 300,000 shares, against 375,000 yesterday.

Utilities generally perked up in the late trading. Electric Bond & Share, Electric Power Associates, Electric Power & Light Warrants and American Gas & Electric moved up about a point. American Superpower and United Gas closed up fractionally.

	Dec.31, 1930.	Dec.31, 1931.	Day's close.	Ch'nge.
Shenand'h. pf.	80.06	115.60	31.50	+ 1.50
Blue Ridge, com.	5.17	9.46	4.00	—
Blue Ridge, pf.	92.93	111.36	33.75	+ .87
El. Share'g com.	11.37	16.90	10.50	— .50
Am. Cities "B"	8.35	14.60	7.50	— .25

Trends in the industrials and specialties were mixed. Ford, Ltd., was an active feature, sagging a point, then rallying to close off only ⅛. Mesta Machine sold up about 4. Educational Picture preferred, a rarely traded-in issue, shot up 12. Deere was steady, failing to follow farm implements in their rally on the big board. Anglo Chilean was under pressure, losing a point.

Oils were mixed. Cities Service, Indiana and Vacuum each closed up fractionally, while Gulf and Standard of Ohio lost about a point.

New Flotation Offered By North American Co.

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—An issue of $25,000,000 North American Co. 5 per cent debentures, due February 1, 1961, was offered at 97 and interest to yield 5.20 per cent by Dillon, Read & Co.

This is the first public offering of a bond issue for the North American Co. and comprises the only funded debt of the company. Organized in 1890, it controls through important public utility operating companies, including, among others, the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co., the Union Electric Light & Power Co. of Missouri, the Union Electric Light & Power Co. of Illinois and the Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Co.

Sears, Roebuck Co. Sales Off Sharply

Chicago, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The annual report of Sears, Roebuck & Co. tonight showed net profits for 1930 of $14,308,897, less than half the 1929 returns of $30,057,652. The profit is equivalent to $3.01 a share on the outstanding 4,747,973 shares of stock. Gross sales for the year declined $53,000,000, a decrease of 12 per cent. Total sales for 1930 were $390,382,107 as compared with $443,452,840 in 1929.

Little effort was made to increase the number of retail stores in 1930, the company adding only nine. This brought the total to 350 stores.

The number of stockholders, excluding employes, increased to 27,700. Some 22,000 employes also share in earnings under a profit-sharing plan, their stock held jointly. No cuts were made in salaries or wages, but the number of employes has decreased approximately 15 per cent. This resulted in pay roll savings amounting to more than $100,000 a week.

Du Pont Company Earnings Shown

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The annual report of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. for 1930, issued today, shows earnings applicable to common stock were $49,990,029, or $4.64 a share earned on the average number of 10,783,555 shares outstanding. This compares with $72,300,627, or $7.09 a share on the average number of 10,196,777 shares outstanding for 1929.

The net income for 1930 was $55,962,009, equal to 9.4 times the debenture stock dividends and was in excess of dividend requirements of both debenture and common stock by $3,900,197. Net income for 1929 was $78,171,730.

Commenting on business conditions as affecting the company, The report says:

"Some of the departments and subsidiaries encountered substantial reduction in volume, which was counteracted to an important extent by increase in others. The volume of business expressed in dollar sales was about 18 per cent less than in 1929. An approximation on a tonnage basis indicates it was about 12 per cent less and the average price of the company's products as a whole showed a decline of 6 per cent."

Reading and Erie Valuations Fixed

Final valuations were fixed yesterday by the Interstate Commerce Commission on the properties of the Reading and the Erie Railroads.

The Reading was valued at $233,755,000 as of June, 1917, the date on which commission engineers completed their preliminary inventory. For the Erie system, a value on June, 1918, of $284,279,000 was set. Both totals must be brought up to date in commission procedure by the addition of huge sums which have been reinvested in the property since the valuation work was begun.

The commission's figure for the Erie, which operates 4,521 miles of Eastern trunk lines, checked very closely with that carrier's own book investment account on its property, which showed a total of $283,005,000. On the valuation date, the Erie had outstanding $391,702,600 in securities of all types. The Reading valuation was a composite figure representing the worth of a large group of subsidiary corporations.

COUNTY'S GAS RATE HEARING PUT OFF

Illness of Valuation Engineer Brings Delay in Date of Arlington Test.

MILK TO BE LABELED

ARLINGTON COUNTY,
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The hearing on the question of gas rates for Arlington County, scheduled for today before the Virginia State Corporation Commission, has been postponed.

Owing to the illness of Maj. Calvin Kephart, valuation engineer, who will appear in the interest of the county, the hearing set for today was postponed at the request of Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth. No date for the hearing was set.

Officials for the county several days ago communicated with the State Corporation Commission, suggesting that a formal complaint filed by them be merged with a previous complaint, filed with the commission by the Lyon Park Citizens Association, and set for some future date, because of the similarity of the two issues and because of the time needed to prepare the case. Up to yesterday morning, however, no word had been received from the commission, so Mr. Gloth, after a conference with Wilton J. Lambert, counsel for the Washington Gas Light Co., telephoned to the commission at Richmond and had the hearing postponed to a date which will be set later by the commission.

Dairies operating in Arlington County must have the grade of milk sold labeled on the caps of the bottles by February 2 to avoid prosecution by the county health department, according to an announcement made yesterday by Sanitary Inspector Norbert Milnick.

According to Mr. Milnick, he, with a State health inspector, on February 2 will label all stores according to the grade of milk sold by them, and from then on will inspect both the stores and dairies to see that they comply with the State law.

This action will complete the task of examining all dairies whose products are sold in the county and grading them according to sanitary conditions. The work was started some months ago.

The executive committee of the Arlington County Civic Federation will meet tonight in the rooms of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce. At this meeting a chairman will be elected and plans formulated for the annual banquet to be given by the federation.

Representative William M. Whittington, from Mississippi, is announced as the principal speaker at the meeting of Columbia Lodge, No. 285, A. F. and A. M., to be held tomorrow night in the Masonic Temple at Clarendon.

The Master Mason's degree will be conferred.

The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals has granted a writ of error in the case of Gordon B. Macke, according to announcement made yesterday by H. Bruce Green, counsel for Macke. The case grew out of an appeal from the decision of Judge Walter T. McCarthy, Circuit Court of Arlington County, at the December term.

Macke was fined $29.50 including costs by Judge Harry R. Thomas in Police Court on December 8, 1930, on charges of operating a cigarette vending machine.

Funeral services for Joshua M. Hutchison, 88 years old, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Lawrence Michael, Lyon Park, yesterday morning, will be conducted from the home tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock by the Rev. Elder Lefferts, of Leesburg. Burial will be at Herndon, Va.

Mr. Hutchison, during the Civil War, served as one of Mosby's lieutenants. He was mustered out of the service at the close of the war at Fairfax Courthouse.

Besides his widow he is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Lawrence Michael, of Lyon Park; Mrs. B. G. Benton and Mrs. Frank Hammond, both of Herndon, Va., and three sons, Paul D. Hutchison, of Charlotte, N. C.; George Hutchison, of Clarendon, and Silas Hutchison, of Herndon, Va.

The League of Republican Women of Arlington County will meet tonight at the home of Mrs. Mary Dudley, Chain Bridge road, Cherrydale. At this meeting the nominating committee to select officers for the year will be elected.

The annual joint card party held by the Woman's Club and Citizens Association of Lyon Park in the Community House last night was attended by more than 100 persons. The prize of 1 ton of coal was won by J. W. Thompson, of 434 Latterner avenue, Lyon Park.

The committee in charge of arrangements were Mrs. L. L. Collie, chairman; Mrs. B. F. Toulotte, Mrs. E. J. Merrick, jr., and Mrs. Virginia Taylor, from the Woman's Club, and J. W. Dorsey, A. T. Rowell and Arthur Orr, from the Citizens Association.

Arrangements are being made by the Matrons and Patrons Association of Mary Washington Chapter, No. 50, Order of the Eastern Star, for a play entitled "The Womanless Wedding," to be given the evening of February 20 in the auditorium of the Washington-Lee High School.

Arlington Chapter, No. 149, United Daughters of the Confederacy, will hold its February meeting at the home of Mrs. P. Miller, Tuesday evening, February 3.

$100,000 Fire Sweeps Hillsville, Va., Section

Hillsville, Va., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Fire of undetermined origin burned six frame buildings in the business section here today. Business men said the loss was probably $100,000.

Firemen from Galax and Mount Airy, N. C., assisted in bringing the fire under control. The blaze swept along the west side of Main street, then leaped across the street to destroy an old unoccupied hotel building of frame construction.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Jan. 29.—State troops took bloodhounds to Bower, Braxton County, today to aid in tracing robbers who took a pay roll package belonging to the Bower Coal Co. late yesterday.

The pay roll, which was on a table in the store postoffice, is said to have contained $800.

TRUST FUND IS CREATED

Baltimore, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—An estate valued at $20,000,000 was disposed of by the will, filed at Towson today, of Capt. Isaac E. Emerson, drug manufacturer and yachtsman, who died last week.

His widow, Mrs. Anne Preston Emerson, and his only daughter, Mrs. Margaret E. Amory, former wife of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, were made the principal beneficiaries of a 20-year trust fund, created from the controlling stock in four corporations.

A number of relatives and business associates were made minor beneficiaries of the trust.

Capt. Emerson, whose title dates from his Spanish-American War service, left his estate, Brookland Wood, near here, to his widow, and also the estate at Narragansett Pier, Rhode Island.

Still Near Brandywine Destroyed by Agents

Prohibition agents from Washington, led by W. R. Blandford, yesterday raided and destroyed a 300-gallon still below Brandywine, Md. The plant was not in operation when the raid was made, and there were no arrests.

In addition to the still there were about 2,500 gallons of mash in the vicinity. No whisky was found, although there were signs the place had been in operation a few hours before.

STATE RESOLUTION URGES DRY REPEAL

CONGRESS TO SEE COPIES

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Jan. 29.—A joint resolution calling on Congress to take steps to repeal the eighteenth admendment, and Jones law and three other measures affecting the dry law made their appearance in the Maryland Legislature today in the course of brief sessions of the Senate and House before adjournment for the week-end, to meet again next Tuesday.

With the various committees of both Houses organized and functioning, and a number of bills already on the files, and all other preliminary details adjusted, the lawmakers have settled down to the real business of the 90-day session, more than three weeks of which have elapsed.

Of local interest to Prince Georges County was a favorable report made in the House on the bill offered by Delegate Kent Mulliken, chairman of the county delegation, which provides for an extension of from four to ten years in the payment of taxes for improvements in the town of Brentwood. The report was adopted.

Copies to Be Forwarded.

Senator E. Milton Altfeld, Baltimore, sponsored the joint resolution for repeal of the prohibition amendment and the Jones law, and it urges the State's representatives in the Congress to work to that end. Copies of the resolution in the event of its adoption will be forwarded to the President as well as both Houses of Congress.

The document levels an attack on prohibition with the declaration that the report of the Wickersham Commission "demonstrated the futility of governmental efforts to enforce it," and also that the reports of individual members of the commission showed the real need for repeal.

It calls for a return of the liquor question to the respective States to be settled by them, and asserts that the Volstead act and Jones law "have done more than anything else in this day and generation to bring about a shameful disrespect for law, weaken the moral fiber of the youth of the Nation and weaken the moral fiber of the citizenship."

Resolution Is Quoted.

The resolution in part, reads:

"Be it resolved, by the General Assembly of Maryland, that the Congress of the United States be and is hereby urgently requested to enact immediately the legislation necessary to submit the repeal of the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States to constitutional conventions to be selected by the various States to pass upon the proposed repeal.

"Be it further resolved, that the Congress of the United States be and is hereby urgently requested to repeal the Volstead and Jones acts for the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment."

Delegate Laynor, Howard County, introduced a bill to repeal the Statewide informer's fee law, and Delegate Purdum, Baltimore, put in a bill to guard more closely the sale of poison alcohol for beverage purposes.

The Parent-Teacher Association, Woodside School, will hold a bake sale at 1110 Seminary road, Montgomery Hill, Md., beginning 9:30 Saturday morning, January 24.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Possible Wickersham Commission Report on the Crime Wave.

("The Wickersham Commission, having filed its findings on prohibition, will next report on its inquiry into the astounding increase in crime in the United States."—News item.)

* * * *

THE commission is opposed to crime.

The commission is opposed to conditions conducive to and resulting in crime, or words to that effect.

The commission is opposed to Al Capone, "Legs" Diamond, "Nigger Nate" Raymond and "Nick the Greek." (Commissioners Grubb, Loesch and Pound dissent in the case of "Nick the Greek" and would substitute a fellow named "Joe the Butcher.")

The commission is opposed to Chicago "pineapples," but approves of California oranges.

The commission is opposed to bank robberies, cigar store hold-ups, hijacking, night club murders, street corner shootings, machine gun assassinations and the custom known as "taking him for a ride." (Commissioners Mackintosh and Kenyon feel, however, that the cigar store has fallen so far from its old-time standards that it is undeserving of consideration at this time.)

The commission is opposed to rackets.

(Note. — Two commissioners who have recently signed testimonials for a cigarette they have never smoked have refused to include indorsements as a racket. Commissioners Anderson, Kenyon and Grubb believe that any drive against rackets should give full attention to greeting cards, Apple Week, Father's Day, radio programs and National Tree Planting Week.)

* * * *

THE commission is opposed to crooked courts, but believes (two brothers dissenting) that such crooked courts as are now functioning should be allowed another year so that the people may determine whether or not they are as crooked as suspected.

The commission believes that there should be some cooperation between arresting officers and the courts in the punishment of gangsters, and is of the opinion there is as yet no adequate indication of any such cooperation. (No exceptions.)

Some of the commissioners are not convinced that the police departments, prosecuting agencies and courts of the country have had a fair trial in the detection and punishment of racketeering criminals. They believe that they should be allowed another 125 years, and that if after such further trial nobody of any influence is put in jail, there should be a general house cleaning. Others believe there has been sufficient trial and that all our criminal laws should be vetoed as nonenforceable.

EXCEPTIONS.

COMMISSIONERS Wickersham, Baker and Pound object to the above report in toto. They hold it impossible to abolish crime without abolishing Chicago.

Commissioners Mackintosh and McCormick wish to state that they signed against their wishes. They believe complete futility of commission treatment of crime was illustrated by the fact that seven of the eleven commissioners had their pockets picked while on the way to or from commission meetings.

Commissioner Comstock does not wish to be understood as agreeing to everything in the above report. She is of the opinion that crime can only be suppressed in America when the tabloid newspapers agree to stop publishing full-length portraits of criminals and paying them $10 a word for their life stories.

AN INTERPRETATIVE SUGGESTION.

ITALY has exiled to a penal island one of its foremost industrialists and financiers on charges of doing "grave and reiterated damage to the nation's economy." Perhaps this is just another way of saying that he gave Mussolini the wrong tips.

The jury returned a verdict for $90,000 for Col. Zack Miller, circus man, in his suit against Tom Mix. But even that, making full allowances for Mr. Mix's styles in millinery, is hardly a hatful of money.

"Heartless Democrat" writes in to say that Mr. Hoover is proving himself a great engineer by personally constructing a self-oiling chute-the-chutes.

All investigators into the prohibition situation overlook the fact that the cause of temperance could be helped materially by a suggestion that the average host get back to the cocktail shaker of a size one man can lift.

THE GREAT METAPHOR SCRAMBLING CONTEST.

"The palls of depression are slowly lifting, a concerted action is being indulged in to stamp out its dregs, credit is plentiful and the security will arrive and be accepted that will allow this immense reservoir to be tapped and thus permit the wheels of industry to turn with greater speed."—From a market letter from a New York brokerage house.

Prisoners Attend Father's Funeral

Deputies Accompany Two Men Held on Theft Charge to Last Rites.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 29.—Even the law recognized bereavement and two prisoners in the Anne Arundel County Jail were today taken to attend funeral services for their father while deputy sheriffs walked down the paths in the cemetery to the grave with them.

The men, Charles Hohrein, 23, charged with breaking into the store of Charles William, of Mountain Road, Third district January 12, and stealing 50 pounds of coffee, and his brother, Harry, aged 27, alleged to have received the stolen goods, asked permission to attend their father's funeral and State's Attorney A. Theodore Brady made the necessary arrangements with Sheriff R. Glenn Prout.

Services were held at Lansdowne, Baltimore County, the men's home, at 3:30 o'clock. After the interment the officers brought the men back to the county jail, where they are being held pending action of the grand jury.

SUNDAY BLUE LAW COURT TEST BEGINS

REPEAL SOUGHT IN BILL

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—A general court test of the Maryland Sunday closing law, which forbids any labor except that incident to the sale of soda, drugs, gasoline and a few specified articles of food, was in prospect today as Max Miller, a delicatessen proprietor, went on trial.

Miller, charged with fifteen violations of the 1920 law was arrested December 21, when police made a drive. Several days ago seven other men, delicatessen employes, were arrested. Their trial is expected to await the outcome of Miller's case. Miller pleaded not guilty when his case was called before Judge Eugene O'Dunne.

A spirited fight over the so-called blue laws in the present session of the Legislature is expected. The Baltimore City Council recently passed a resolution calling for permission to have Sunday movies, and yesterday a bill embodying the demand was introduced in the Legislature.

The Baltimore Ministerial Union this week went on record as opposing any modification of the present law.

Marylanders Ask For Wihpping Post

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Jan. 29.—Resolutions adopted by the Grange asking for the establishment of the whipping post in Maryland for petty thieving were sent to the Legislature in session in Annapolis today.

The resolutions were designed to check raids on poultry and meat houses causing much loss to farmers. Hundreds of chickens and quantities of meat have been stolen and carried away in automobiles.

Farmers have equipped themselves with shotguns and pistols. Flashlights are directed all night on farm outbuildings to keep thieves away. The Grangers feel that the most effective manner to deal with chicken thieves is to give them the lash. The Frederick County delegation is asked to sponsor a State-wide whipping post law.

MONTGOMERY BOARD PLANS SCHOOL COST

$165,300 Called For by One Program and $40,800 by Another.

TO GO TO LEGISLATURE

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4206

Recognizing the financial emergency situation now present among residents of Montgomery County in common with other drought areas, the Board of Education met yesterday at Rockville to outline an emergency program. The board cut and pared until it had prepared a plan which will maintain the high standards of scholastic studies, but which will not require the large expenditure of funds which the expansion program outlined by the Montgomery County Civic Federation would require.

Two plans were prepared, a drastic one, which cuts construction requirements to the bone and would require an expenditure of $40,800; the other, less drastic, would require $165,300 but would be more satisfactory. The permanent program would require the expenditure of $550,000.

The board felt that the drastic program would be best in view of present conditions and voted to present it to the Legislature. The second plan also will be presented, according to Superintendent of Schools Edwin W. Broome, who did much of the work of preparation.

Mr. Broome pointed out that the measures are not intended as permanent improvemnets, but are to care for the increased school population for the next four years in the most economical manner possible consistent with maintenance of a high standard. It was felt that it would be better to sacrifice construction rather than teaching excellence.

Summary of Two Plans.

Following is a summary of the two plans. No. 1 plan is the drastic, and No. 2 is the less drastic.

Takoma-Silver Spring High School, No. 1, continue to use present building for senior and junior classes and provide nine additional rooms by dividing the classes so that the stage and auditorium and special study rooms can be utilized, and add one portable room; estimated cost, $5,000. Plan No. 2, provide four rooms from old assembly, stage and one room not used now, and construct five portable rooms; estimated cost, $15,800.

Chevy Chase School, No. 1, continue use of some rooms in old building and use one section of new building, thus freeing the two-room portable for use elsewhere; cost, $500. Plan No. 2, no suggestions.

Glenmont School, No. 1, make one room in rear corner of assembly hall, continue to use stage as classroom; cost, $950. Plan No. 2, build one room and put folding partition in front of stage; cost, $6,400.

Woodside School Plans.

Woodside School plan No. 1, make two rooms by using side of assembly hall, partitions to be semipermanent and extend to ceiling and for third room needed use portable, cost $4,500; plan No. 2, use three portables, cost $4,500.

Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, eight additional rooms needed: Plan No. 1, use shop for home section room, using home economics rooms for home section room, use science laboratory for two home section rooms and four rooms yet available in building, cost $3,500; plan No. 2, use four available rooms and build four portable rooms, cost $11,500.

Germantown School, main question being safety of building. Plan No. 1, if engineers find building unsafe, build steel frame through frame of building, cost $2,500. Plan No. 2, build front section to provide strength needed and provide additional space for school, cost $20,000.

Fairland School. Plan No. 1, build two portable rooms at a cost of $4,200. Plan No. 2, build two rooms for building, cost $10,500.

Rockville High School.

Rockville High School and Elementary School, five additional rooms needed. Plan No. 1, continue to use present building and the academy property as at present and provide additional rooms needed by partitions on stage and in end of old assembly hall not now used for classrooms and combining other classrooms, cost $3,200. Plan No. 2, build four rooms for new elementary building and continue to use academy property, cost 30,000 for building and $20,000 for land.

Bethesda School, plan No. 1, continue to transport children to Bethesda from Alta Vista and provide four more rooms by partitioning assembly hall and gymnasium and build one portable room, cost $4,650. Plan No. 2, building new kindergarten room at Bethesda and use the rooms in assembly hall and gymnasium, cost, $12,100, and build first unit of three rooms at Alta Vista, estimated at $22,000.

Rockville Colored High School, move two portable rooms from Chevy Chase to relieve in part the crowded conditions, classes now on part time. The two rooms would allow for an increase in the number of pupils in the high school classes but would continue the part time classes as at present, cost, $1,000.

Contingency fund, $10,000 to care for any emergencies which might arise in the other schools which have not been foreseen. The school census was taken into consideration in making the recommendations.

Census of School Students.

Announcement of the results of the census of school children in the county taken by the board of education in November, 1930, was made at the meeting. VIRGINIA FARMERS GET DATA ON LOANS

Drought-Relief Funds for Counties Will Be Sent From Capital.

MONEY IS FOR SUPPLIES

Richmond, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Dr. C. W. Warburton, secretary of the national drought relief committee, announced in a communication received here today that all Virginia counties will be served by the farmers' seed loan offices at Washington in the distribution of the funds available to Virginia under the provisions of the $45,000,000 appropriation for loans to farmers who suffered serious crop losses from drought.

The loans will be for the purchase of seed, fertilizer, feed for work stock, and fuel and oil for tractors used in crop production.

The announcement said that the Secretary of Agriculture had authorized Dr. Warburton that loans might be made for the purchase of spraying and dusting material to protect crops, including orchard fruits, from insects and plant diseases. Amendments to the regulations governing the making of loans were being prepared to cover loans for these purposes.

Loans to farmers who suffered serious crop losses from drought or storms will be made in all counties in Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia, from the Washington offices, the communication said.

Information and the proper forms for applying for loans have been sent to the county drought chairmen in all of the Virginia counties. They have the information needed by the farmers who are considering applications for loans, and will furnish it upon request, according to John H. Hutcheson, vice chairman of the Virginia drought and unemployment relief commission.

Couple Convicted Of Beating Woman

Frederick Residents Meted Sentences to House of Correction.

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Jan. 29.—Convicted of mistreating Annie Suman, a 33-year-old domestic of child mentality, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Goodsell, well-known residents of near this city, were sentenced to six and three months, respectively, in the Maryland House of Correction today by Magistrate Alton Y. Bennett. Immediately after the sentence was imposed, in the courtroom crowded with spectators, the Goodsells appealed from the verdict and posted $500 for a retrial before the circuit court next month.

At the trial Miss Suman testified that Mr. and Mrs. Goodsell beat her for the slightest cause with a fire shovel and wagon whip. "They made me stand in a corner on one foot, and when I put the other foot down they struck me with a long whip. When I bent over they struck me with a fire shovel," the woman testified. Dr. B. O. Thomas testified that he was called to examine the woman and found both eyes discolored and a mass of bruises and scars all over her body. The Goodsells denied the charge and alleged the bruises were caused by pranks in which the woman participated.

Alumnae Gather After 29 Years

Richmond, Va., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—College belles of the "gay nineties," many of them meeting for the first time in over three decades, exchanged joyful greetings today at a luncheon for alumni of the Powell School, a noted educational institution here which has been closed since 1901. Two-minute talks were permitted each alumnus in which to telf recollections of the days as schoolgirls in the old building at 3 East Grace street, now used as a home for needy Confederate women.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the late President, and Mrs. Hugh Cumings, wife of the Surgeon General, motored from Washington for the luncheon. Mrs. Cabell Tutwiler, of Chestnut Hill, Pa., and her sister, Ellen Glasgow, noted novelist, were also among the guests.

The school, properly named the Richmond Seminary, but more often termed "Mr. Powell's School," had departments for small children as well as the finishing school for young women. Many of those who attended today's luncheon were small girls wearing hair ribbons when the school was closed.

The contest was under the general supervision of C. W. Pegram, of the dairy extension office, Blacksburg. There are 40 dairy plants in the State.

Other leaders in the dairy industry of Virginia were also honored at tonight's banquet. State dairy herds to the number of 171 made an average of 300 pounds of butter fat, or more per cow for their testing years, ending between July 1, 1929, and June 30, 1930. These herds comprise the Virginia dairy herd honor roll. Their owners received the diploma of the National Dairy Association in recognition of the achievement, the awards being made by C. Nelson Beck, president of the Virginia State Dairymen's Association.

Thirty-seven more herds have a place on the 1930 honor roll than received the honor in 1929. There was a total of sixteen herds showing an average production per cow of 400 pounds of butter fat or over.

The total number of herds in dairy herd improvement associations for the period was over 400. A number of these herd owners have been on the national honor roll every year since its inception in 1924 and have shown consistent increase in production from year to year.

MELLWOOD WOMEN OBJECT TO BUILDING

MATCH BURGLAR ACTIVE

The anticipated opposition in Prince Georges County to the erection of a building to house branches of the county government in Hyattsville developed when the county delegation to the Legislature met to consider the bill which would be introduced.

All members of the delegation received letters from the Women's Club of the Mellwood District, absolutely opposing any construction save, perhaps, a jail, in the metropolitan area. These letters pointed out that there is a certain amount of space in the courthouse at Marlboro which is not used. The letters, which were sent by a committee of the club, were signed by Maude A. McManus, Helen Rector, Cora P. Maybery, Ellen H. Hill and Virge E. Brown.

In spite of these letters, it seems likely that some arrangement will be made for the centralized housing of government agencies. The Republicans pledged a county building, modeled after those in Montgomery County, in the last campaign. And while they are in a minority in the delegation, several Democrats from the upper end of the county are understood also to favor the project.

The objection to such a building is understood, unofficially, to arise from two causes: the expense and the possible diminution of the prestige of Upper Marlboro. Some of the delegates are said to be studying a plan to utilize the First National Bank Building, now vacant. This would house the Police Court, the home demonstration agent's office, and possibly branches of the school administration, the health office, the commissioners' office and a branch police station. Use of the bank building would do away with the necessity for a bond issue to erect a new building, and would also lead to the construction of such a building later by showing the necessity for it.

Residents of Marlboro are extremely jealous of the position of that town as the county seat, and any removal of the government from that point would be fought to the last ditch. It seems to be a fear that to establish branches would set a precedent for the total removal of the seat of the county government. Rural residents in the southern part of the county also want to keep the present central position, but the thinly populated sections in the upper end, it is believed, would like to see the courthouse in Laurel. Whatever they want, it seems probable that there will be a branch building for the county government in Hyattsville before long.

Either the Montgomery County "match burglar" or one of his imitators has started to work in the neighborhood of Cheverly, it was learned last night. In a number of recent cases, burned match stems have littered the floor of burglarized houses.

The seventh case to be reported to police was the entrance of the home of R. H. Wentworth, where a suit of clothes and some personal articles were taken. Four suspects have been arrested, but all have been released after investigation.

Two hundred and fifty children were treated at the diphtheria clinic held at the Olive street school in Hyattsville Tuesday, 80 of them of pre-school age. These ranged from eight months to two years old. All those treated were given the toxin-antitoxin treatment.

It is said that there was no indication of an outbreak of diphtheria, but that six cases, resulting in three deaths, had been reported in the last two months. This makes it advisable that all children should receive the preventive treatment. Parents are advised to consult their doctors in all cases of sore throat and continued croup.

A fire which burned several acres of timber and a part of an orchard yesterday did about $100 damage on the property of Paul H. Gilbert, near Meadows. The fire, which threatened the house, was held in control by State Policeman W. A. Rogers, who managed to keep the flames down until the arrival of the Marlboro Fire
